

South, East, and Midwest Battered By Howling Storm

Some Sections Get Heaviest Snow Of Year; 3½ Inches in Fox Cities

By The Associated Press

Destructive storms, in one of winter's most vicious climatic attacks, staggered the midwest, the south and the east today.

Sections of the midwest and south were buried under the heaviest snow covering of the season, just three days before the official arrival of spring. The storm moved into the north-east, with heavy snow indicated in some areas.

Snow flurries were reported in the Fox Cities at 11 a. m.

Wednesday and they developed into steady snowfall by noon and lasted until 9:30 p. m. A total of 3½ inches fell to bring the snow cover to 5½ inches. Snow flurries continued during the night.

Second Storm

A second storm over the North Carolina coast dumped snow, sleet and rain northward along the Atlantic coast.

In central Florida, torrential rains forced hundreds of persons from their flooded homes and washed out crops and roads. One drowning was reported. An estimated 600 persons were temporarily homeless in Plant City, a community of some 9,000 which was hit by a damaging tornado yesterday. The town, buildings and nine planes at the airport. The tornado struck near Tampa, was declared a disaster area.

Damage to roads in five counties of the Tampa Bay area was estimated unofficially at more than a million.

Seek to Boost U. S. Exports

like Asks Support, Cooperation of Congress Members

Washington —(P)— President Eisenhower today called on congress and private business to join in a vigorous campaign to increase American export trade.

The president sounded the call in a special message to congress. He said most of the goals of the administration can be accomplished under existing law, but that the cooperation and support of congress are vital to success of the program.

As for the role of private enterprise, Eisenhower said:

"Government promotion... can be effective only to the extent that it stimulates and encourages private business efforts to expand sales abroad. Government can help in large export opportunities, but it is American business that must supply and sell the goods that world markets demand."

Speed Adoption Of Gifted Child

Old Bridge, N.J. —(P)— Mr. and Mrs. Richard Combs may be able to adopt their bright, year-old foster child, Alice Marie, in less than a month.

F. Morse Archer, Jr., head of the N.J. child welfare board, said yesterday the board was willing to speed up the adoption process, which normally takes a year, if the Combs act quickly.

"The sooner the better as far as we're concerned," Combs said.

People Read Papers for New Car Information

Buying interest in compact American cars is high. Estimates for 1960 compact car sales are over 2 million units, and newspapers play a dominant role in telling consumers about them.

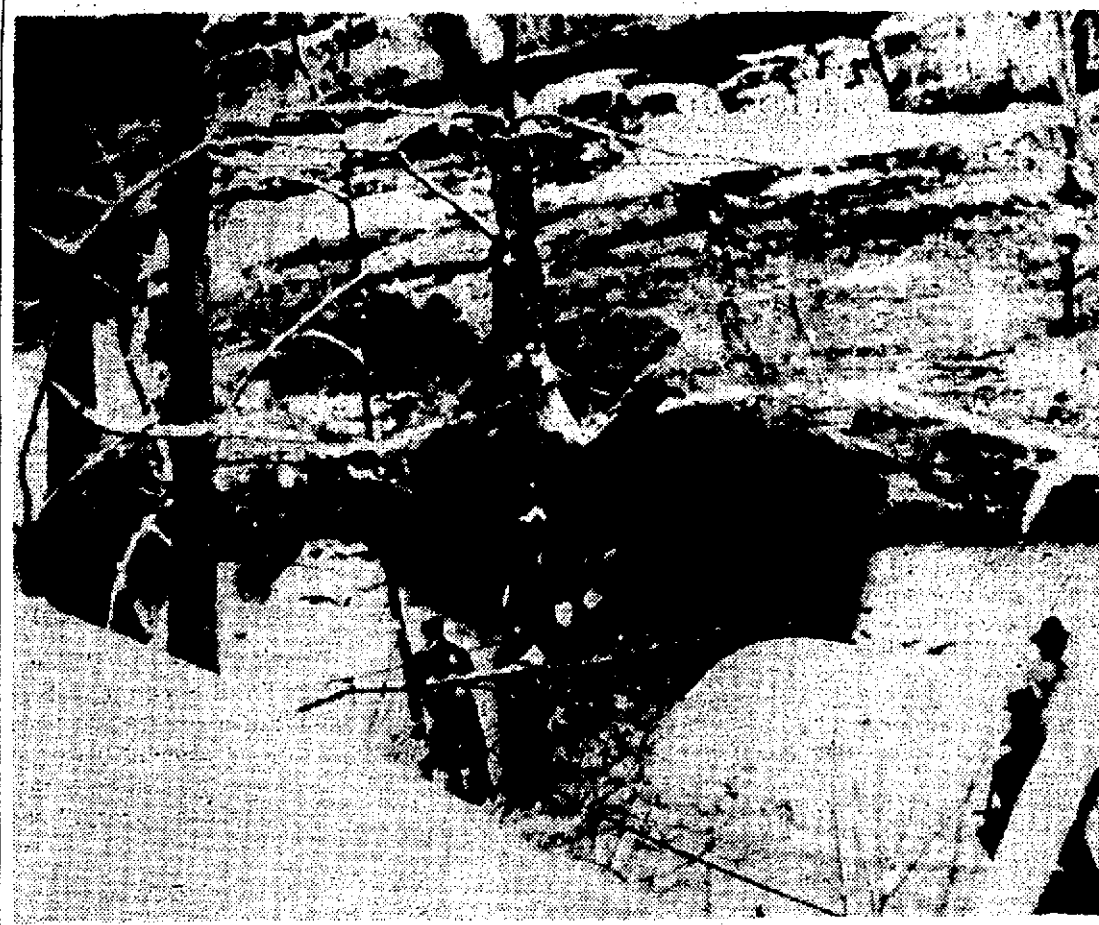

In a recent survey, more people mentioned newspaper ads and stories than any other single source of information about them.

Eisenhower Will Visit Portugal

Washington —(P)— President Eisenhower today formally accepted an invitation to visit Lisbon, Portugal, on his way home from the summit conference in Paris.

The invitation was extended by Portugal's president, Americo Rodriguez Tomas.

No specific date has been set for Eisenhower's arrival in Lisbon. It will depend on the length of the summit conference which begins May 16.

The Tomas invitation was delivered to Eisenhower last Saturday by Portugal's ambassador to the United States.

At that time the White House made it clear that the president planned to accept.

Mother Couldn't Help

Death Waits 9 Days For Victim of Polio

Long Beach, Calif. —(P)—

For nearly all her 42 years, Bertie Balding had been cared for by her mother.

At the age of 6 months, Bertie was paralyzed from the throat down by polio.

Her mother, Daisy May Balding, insisted that she alone take care of her daughter.

And she did—year after year.

Wordless Link

A widow for the last 28 years, Mrs. Balding continued to minister to her daughter's needs.

Polio had taken away Bertie's ability to speak—and the two women became inseparable in a wordless, but steadfast relationship.

Then on March 9, something happened, police said.

Bertie waited for her 78-year-old mother to come into her bedroom as usual and take care of her daily needs.

But her mother didn't come.

For six days and six nights, Bertie lay silent and immobile on her wheelchair bed, staring straight ahead and waiting for her mother.

No one knows what fears passed through Bertie's mind, how time passed or whether she was conscious throughout her ordeal.

She simply lay there, waiting mutely for her mother to come.

On Tuesday, a sister found Bertie in her bedroom—she had gone without food or water nearly a week.

Bertie was taken to a hospital. She died of malnutrition yesterday.

Police said her mother apparently had died in her sleep March 9.

A double funeral service was scheduled today. Mother and daughter were to be buried side by side in Westminster Memorial park.

U. S. Asks Ban on Weapons in Space

Geneva —(P)— U.S. Delegate Frederick M. Eaton asked the 10-nation disarmament conference today to agree at once on the banning of weapons in outer space.

He also called for auditing of missile flights and a halt in production of nuclear materials for arms or other purposes.

Eaton told the delegations that such steps would give an impetus to their work in seeking general disarmament.

He warned that the final banning of all weapons would not be accomplished all at once like the legendary birth of Venus from the sea.

Take Steps Now

He said he believed the conference could take steps now to deny the use of outer space to weapons of mass destruction forever.

A reporting of missile flights to some center which would keep track of them would ease the chance of miscalculations that might start a war, he said.

The western powers say they are seeking a disarmament pact before scientists can develop nuclear-armed space satellites.

Speaking in the 2-hour second working session, Eaton said the conference should move at once into the problem of nuclear material.

He said something should be done about the vast production of these materials and added that if production was stopped a way would be open to moving on to the transformation of these materials for peaceful uses.

Want Control

Eaton also made it plain that the five western powers do not regard the three stages of their plan as watertight compartments. He said that phases one and two could really be regarded as part of the whole opening movement toward disarmament.

He warned the five communist powers—the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Romania and Bulgaria—that it is futile for them to believe the United States would ever enter any general disarmament agreement which failed to contain central elements of control.

Beauty Queen

London —(P)— Austrian

Beauty Queen Johanna Ehrenstrasser was sentenced today to 12 months in jail for stealing almost $20,000 worth of furs and jewelry in a shoplifting spree.

The defense argued vainly that the blonde, 21-year-old actress, Miss Europe of 1958, was the victim of a reducing drug she had been taking since last June to preserve her 57-221-37 figure.

"It exhilarates and gives a sense of irresponsibility," the court was told by a psychiatrist, Dr. Clifford Allen at a January hearing. "I think this girl has only misbehaved—if she has misbehaved—because she had taken this drug."

No Fallout Danger in French Atomic Blast

Paris —(P)— France's atomic blast in the Sahara Feb. 13 was at least three times more powerful than the first U.S. atom bomb dropped on Hiroshima, Japan, but the government says it caused no fallout danger to inhabited areas.

Bruised, Battered Bodies Found in Illinois Park

Cave; Question Residents

Ottawa, Ill. —(P)— A gnarled, bloodstained tree limb and pieces of red cord were objects of intense scrutiny today as police spurred efforts to solve the slaying of three women on a holiday trip to one of Illinois' most scenic resorts.

But investigators admitted they still had little to go on. "It's anybody's guess," said Sgt. William Hall of the state police.

Troopers picked up two men on an anonymous tip late last night but they were released a short time later. Lawmen continued their questioning of homeowners and motel owners in hopes of stumbling onto a new lead.

The women, wives of prominent Chicago business executives, were found by a search party yesterday on the floor of a cave in a towering sandstone canyon in Starved Rock State park, 100 miles southwest of Chicago.

Bruised, Battered

Their heads were bloodied and battered. Bruises covered other parts of their bodies. Two women were naked from the waist down. A fingertip was missing from one victim.

State's Atty. Harlan Warren said all indications pointed to rape. State Police Superintendent William Morris, who headed a 3-man team of troopers from Springfield, agreed it was a sex crime.

"one of the worst in my 19 years as a policeman."

The victims, all socially prominent in the western Chicago suburb of Riverside, were:

Mrs. Frances Murphy, 47, wife of R. W. Murphy, vice president and general counsel for Borg-Warner corp.

Mrs. Mildred Lindquist, 50, wife of Robert Lindquist, vice

from nine days and nights of worry and mourning, relatives today prepared to bury the first of 16 men who suffocated from a mine fire.

Two men still were missing somewhere deep in Holden 22 mine. Families and rescue workers have given up hope they will be found alive, but work teams continued the search.

All 18 were trapped March 8 when a slate fall touched off by a smoldering fire and more rock falls piled up a burning barrier 200 feet long in the Island Creek Coal company mine.

Sixteen of the 18 men left widows. They also left 77 children in all, nine of them in the family of Roy Lee Dempsey, veteran 59-year-old miner.

Vanguard I Marks Its Second Anniversary

Washington —(P)— Vanguard I, the smallest and second oldest of the satellites whirling about the earth, marks its second anniversary today.

The National Aeronautics and Space administration estimated the distance traveled—at the rate of about 18,000 miles an hour—at 281,485,400 miles at 7:15 a.m., exactly two years after the March 17, 1958, launching at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Neither Rain Nor Snow Stays Parade of Irish

rain nor snow nor sleet stay the Irish from their big parade today.

Going that paraphrase even one better, an official of the mammoth St. Patrick's Day shindig said last night:

"It would take a tornado to keep us from marching."

The weather forecast—some snow mixed with sleet or rain but possibly tapering off later this morning—failed to dampen enthusiasm for the annual trek up green-striped Fifth avenue by about 120,000 marchers.

Million Spectators Will View Mammoth St. Patrick Event

spectators along the 52-block route, and you've got part of the big picture. And you also can add millions more who become Irishmen every March 17.

To give you an idea of why it takes at least six hours to complete the parade: 350 organizations march 16 abreast in 60 battalions. That totals up to a lot of sore feet.

No vehicles or floats are allowed in the parade. But listen to that throbbing music of 100 bands, including 12 pipe outfits!

It's a big job policing the march from 44th to 96th street. More than 2,700 patrolmen are stationed along the 2½-mile route. Fifty mounted policemen head the marching columns and another six dozen "mounties" are on traffic duty.

The only people who sit down are the window watchers and those occupying 10 blocks of bleacher stands seating 10,000.

Teddy Nadler Flunks Census Taker Test

St. Louis —(P)— Teddy

Nadler flunked a written examination for prospective census takers today.

The chunky former clerk who won $264,000 on television quiz shows fidgeted and fretted through an hour-long map reading and vocabulary test along with about 50 other applicants.

After he had learned the bad news Nadler explained:

"I was nervous... There were so many people there."

"I flunked it. It makes me look like a nitwit. I shouldn't have taken it. It'll take me 3 or 4 months to live this down."

Try for Agreement On Rights at Sea

Want to Determine How Far Out in Ocean a Nation's Sovereignty Should Extend

Geneva —(U)— Representatives of 86 nations meet today to begin another attempt at agreement on how far out to sea a nation's sovereignty extends.

Their purpose is to halt what many officials called creeping anarchy along the world's coasts.

The Conference on the Law of the Sea two years ago accepted four conventions which for the first time set world-wide rules governing territorial waters, the high seas and the offshore shallow ocean bed of the continental shelf.

But these are not effective without agreement on where a nation's sovereign rights should end and the open sea begin.

3-Mile Limit

Many maritime nations still abide by the 3-mile limit generally accepted since the time of sailing vessels and naval guns that could not shoot that far. But more and more smaller and younger countries have pushed their sea borders beyond that limit, both for security reasons and to keep foreign trawlers from offshore fishing grounds.

The insistence of many Latin-American and Asian countries and the communist bloc forced the leading maritime nations to drop the principle of the 3-mile limit in favor of a U.S. - British compromise proposal — 6 miles for territorial waters and 12 miles for exclusive fishing rights.

This failed to receive a two-thirds majority from the conference two years ago. It is expected to be resubmitted in revised form.

Push Sea Borders

Since the last maritime conference, Iran and Panama have pushed their sea borders out toward the 12-mile limit. Britain has granted Denmark exclusive fishing rights in a 6-mile belt around the Faroe Islands.

Iceland triggered a "fish war" with Britain by extending its territorial waters from 3 to 12 miles in 1958. Britain,

May Locate Polaris Bases In Europe

Solid-Fuel Missile Has Range of About 1,200 Miles

Washington —(U)— Military leaders are studying the possibility of equipping land bases in Europe with Polaris missiles, says Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates, Jr.

The solid-fuel Polaris is designed for firing from submarines and will have a range of about 1,200 miles.

Gates was questioned about the Polaris Wednesday when he testified at a combined public hearing by the joint senate space committee and the senate defense preparedness subcommittee.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) later told a newsman he believed the Polaris could be used from the bases now being readied in Great Britain and other countries for the Thor and Jupiter, American liquid-fuel missiles.

Gates again said more tests will have to be made on nuclear-powered Polaris submarines before a decision is made on whether to ask for funds to build more of them.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas), chairman of both senate groups, said that in the past congress had voted additional funds for defense only to have the money frozen by the executive branch or used for other purposes.

Johnson asked Gates if he would use the extra funds should they be voted by congress.

"That is always a question for the president to decide," Gates said. He added he believed the president would agree to any recommendation he and the joint chiefs of staff made.

Gates again told the senators that military leaders believe the nation's defensive strength is adequate. He rejected suggestions that the United States should match Russia missile for missile or maintain an airborne alert.

He said it would be suicidal for Russia to attack the United States, adding "I do not believe the Soviet Union is interested in committing suicide."

25 Escape Injury When Landing Gear Collapses

Baltimore —(U)— Twenty passengers and five crewmen escaped injury Wednesday night when the landing gear of an American Airlines DC-6 collapsed as it landed in a snowstorm at Friendship International airport.

Airport police said the plane veered off the runway into a snowbank and that may have helped prevent injury.

All aboard were examined by a doctor and released. The flight was one from Boston and New York bound for Washington. The Washington passengers were taken the rest of the way by bus.

Outlook for Business Clouded by New Report

Upward Thrust Stalls in February After Record Heights Attained

Washington —(U)— Official reports on the state of the economy served today to cloud rather than clarify the business outlook.

The upward thrust of business activity just about stalled in February, after lifting production and income to record heights since the steel strike.

The output of mines, mills and utilities sagged 1 per cent last month from the January peak, the government reported Wednesday, while the incomes of Americans were virtually unchanged.

Adopted Son Shoots Father With Pistol

Syracuse, N.Y. —(U)— A 13-year-old boy Scout, an adopted son behind in school, was held today in the pistol death of his father, a contracting executive who demanded higher marks from the boy.

"I'm not the worst student in the world, but my father wanted me to be the best in everything," seventh-grader Robert Fairbank was quoted as saying when police who had been hunting him found him with a loaded pistol, near a park.

The father, Leon Fairbank, 56, was shot to death Wednesday night in his spacious home in suburban Onondaga Hill. His wife, Helen, found his body in a bathroom.

Assemblyman Rice Won't Seek Re-election

Delavan —(U)— Dr. Ora G. Rice, a Republican Assemblyman for nearly 24 years and speaker of that house during the 1951-53 sessions, announced today that he will not be a candidate for re-election.

The Delavan dentist also is widely known as a turkey farmer.

30 Years as First Grade Instructor

Teacher of Year Has Introduced 1,200 to Education

Washington —(U)— "Few things in life can equal the delight of a small child learning to read — or of the teacher who can feel she has helped with this discovery," says America's teacher of the year.

Mrs. Hazel Davenport, who holds the 1960 title, speaks from experience. All but 3 of her 33 years of teaching has been in first grade classrooms in the elementary schools of West Virginia's Raleigh county.

More than 1,200 boys and girls have been introduced to formal education in her classrooms. The 52-year-old Beckley, W. Va., teacher soon will be instructing the grandchildren of some of her first pupils.

'Healing Touch'

One of her former pupils said Mrs. Davenport "seemed to glamorize the things around us. Also, she had the healing touch. She always had the right words that would drive the tears away."

Mrs. Davenport spent 24 years in night classes and summer school to further her own education. Her salary is $4,419 a year — the maximum paid in her county to a teacher with a master's degree and at least 16 years experience.

Her selection as teacher of the year was announced Wednesday by McCall's magazine, the U. S. office of education and the council of chief state school officers.

She was selected from a list of teachers nominated by state departments of education throughout the country.

Mrs. Davenport was named West Virginia's teacher of the year in 1958.

She calls on Vice President Richard M. Nixon at his office today and will talk with West Virginia's senators and representatives and officials of the office of education and the National Education association before ending a 2-day Washington visit tomorrow.

Butler Denies Using Party Position to Favor Sen. Kennedy

No Intention of Resigning Says Democratic National Chairman

New York —(U)— Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler says he has no intention of resigning — as demanded by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota.

After that declaration, Butler said he would make "no further comment about Sen. Humphrey's remarks, though it distresses me to have those remarks come from a person I so greatly admire."

Butler also denied at a news conference Wednesday that he had used his party position to favor Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, one of Humphrey's rivals for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Butler, however, refused to deny or admit that he predicted last Monday that Kennedy would win the nomination on the first convention ballot.

The chairman was reported to have made the prediction anonymously to a group of reporters at the National Press club in Washington.

News Conference

Wednesday's news conference followed remarks by Butler to newsmen earlier in the day.

Butler insisted that he had "not evaluated at any time for public information any candidate."

The reported statement by Butler Monday led Humphrey to demand his resignation. Humphrey said Butler had "outlived his usefulness" and "has helped neither himself nor our great party."

Party national chairmen traditionally are supposed to remain neutral in pre-convention contests.

Butler, who was in New York City to make a party speech, told the newsmen: "I believe the national chairman should remain neutral. I will not tolerate abuse of my office for the advantage of any candidate."

Average Motorist Can Deduct $40.71 for Gas Taxes in 1959

Madison —(U)— The Wisconsin Petroleum council issued a reminder today that Wisconsin's average motorist is entitled to a $40.71 federal income tax deduction for state gas taxes paid in 1959.

The state tax is 6 cents a gallon.

Fred Elliott executive secretary of the council, said 9,500 miles is considered average driving and tax paid is computed on mileage of 14 miles a gallon.

He noted that the federal gas tax, increased from 3 to 4 cents last October, may not be deducted in the state return.

He said today and will talk with West Virginia's senators and representatives and officials of the office of education and the National Education association before ending a 2-day Washington visit tomorrow.

Snow Not So Bad, Remember Tornadoes of 35 Years Ago?

Chicago —(U)— Are residents of the central United States getting sick of these king-sized, off-season March snow storms? It could be worse—much worse. Like on that mild, snowless day 35 years ago tomorrow.

Storm clouds boiled in the sky over the midcontinent. Eight funnel clouds dropped their lethal stingers to earth. One—the worst tornado in America's recorded history—hit southern Illinois and sections of Missouri and Indiana.

This packet of wanton energy touched down at 1 p. m. in Reynolds county, Missouri. For 3 hours and 18 minutes it ground a 210-mile long path of death and destruction northward across southern Illinois into Indiana beyond recognition.

It cut a swath 1 to 1 mile wide across the Illinois towns and cities of Gosham, Murphysboro, Desoto, Bush, West Frankfort, Parish, Holga and Crossville.

The final count showed 689 dead, nearly 2,000 injured and damage in excess of $16 million.

There were 234 killed and 800 injured in Murphysboro alone. The city of 13,000 population was 60 per cent destroyed. Some 1,200 homes were flattened or damaged there.

The toll in West Frankfort was 127 killed and 450 others injured.

Backache Needs The Attention Of A Chiropractor

You need a Chiropractor if you have a backache, but it isn't necessary to have a backache to need a Chiropractor. In other words Chiropractors are, you might say, spine and nerve specialists and of all the things that can go wrong with the body, backache is certainly something that should be taken care of by a Chiropractor.

Backaches like headaches indicate nerve irritation and are nature's way of telling you that something is wrong. This message sponsored in the interest of public health by: Chiropractors of the Fox Cities and Locale.

Rare Malady Breaks Out in Britain As New 1-Pound Note Upsets Clerks

London —(U)— A rare malady broke out today among a large body of Britons. All of a sudden they hate money.

The money is the new 1-pound note — worth $2.80 — which came out this morning with a portrait of Queen Elizabeth II on it.

Now all is chaos. They have to hold the right hand side down with their right hands and flip the left hand corners with their left hands. "The new position will double our work," declared Edgar Bell, president of the National Union of Bank employees.

"We will either have to count with the left hand, which will be clumsy, or pick up each note separately, which will slow the counting process to a walk."

Fits Design

A spokesman for the Bank of England, which issues British currency, said: "The change in the position of serial numbers was made to fit in with the artistic design of the notes."

Reported Bell: "It's only someone didn't consult the clerks. The Bank of England failed to think this thing through."

But left-handed bank clerks, who have labored under a handicap throughout their careers, were quietly jubilant. Said one such southerner: "Long live Queen Elizabeth."

Housing Credit Program Turns In Tidy Profit

Over $2 Million Yield Reported In 15 Years

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — In spite of a deliberately low rate of interest charges, the state's veterans housing credit program has turned in a tidy profit during the 15 years since the loan law was written for the aid of U. S. servicemen who served in World war II.

Besides supporting the costs of the state department of veterans' affairs during that period, the 2 per cent loans on second mortgages held by veterans have turned in a net yield of more than $2,000,000, according to a report by Department Director Gordon Huseby to the state board of government operations.

Funds Available

Huseby reported as the board authorized a $3,000,000 inter-department fund transfer to make available more funds for lending on veterans' homes during the expected increased demand period in the spring.

The state program is now on a revolving fund basis. Credits for new loans are provided through repayments on older mortgages. The state experience in collections has been a good one, officials have reported. There is now a form of mortgage cancellation insurance to protect those borrowers who may die or otherwise be unable to meet their obligations.

Sen. W. A. Draheim of Neenah asked Huseby for a guess on the probable duration of the lending program.

The officer estimated that in about 15 years the program may no longer be needed "if we don't get into another war." Originally about 460,000 World war I and World war II veterans were eligible, but in practice most of the applications have come from the younger service men.

When the program ends, the state will have remaining a fund of about $25,000,000, the department head estimated.

Ancient Dublin Blue Law Doesn't Stop St. Patrick's Eve Imbibing

Playwright and Tenor Head Tankard Club Pledged to Destruction of Stout

BY COLIN FROST
Dublin, Ireland —(AP)— St. Patrick's day 1960 and the old town is dry as a bone. That, at least, is the government's hope, since no Dublin bar is allowed to open to help Irishmen drown the shamrock. Nonetheless, the shamrock can be drowned. The thirsty can get a drink at the dog show at Ballsbridge show grounds. But will there be any room left for showing the dogs? Next year, the official St. Paddy's day drought should end. A new liquor act is before the Dail, parliament's lower house, and the 1961 celebration likely will be as wet as the River Liffey that runs through dear old Dublin. Destruction of Stout This time it was St. Paddy's eve that echoed with the celebrations. And the most resounding of the lot was staged by the Gurriers' Tankard club. The Gurriers' club is devoted to the destruction of stout and the preservation of horse cabs. In pursuit of these objectives, the club members set out on a weekly horsedrawn course through Dublin, stopping at the many pubs along the way to refresh their horses. The club president is Brendan Behan, deigning Irish playwright, and the vice president is Josef Locke, the reigning Irish tenor. On The Wagon A horse cab and Dublin and mist along the Liffey have a magic all of their own. And after a few of the old rebel songs as only Behan and Locke can sing them, the Searchers also plan to use a weed burning machine to melt snow in the canyon, figuring some clue might lay beneath the wintry blanket. The women had started on the hike shortly after checking into the lodge. A snowstorm swept the area Monday night, obliterating footprints. State's Atty. Warren said he was able to put together in his mind this picture of the slayings: After checking into the lodge, the women had a soft drink, changed to hiking clothes and then set out along the rocky terrain. They were followed, perhaps by someone in the lodge area or perhaps by someone spotting them from Illinois Highway 178 which overlooks the canyon. Outside Cave He visualized one of the women striking out with her binoculars, another with her camera, catching one assailant in the face. Then came the slayings. Warren expressed the view the actual killings took place outside the cave, with the bodies dragged in for concealment. The battered opera glasses and the camera were found near the victims. The camera strap was broken, and perhaps lies under the snow. A pair of spectacles also was found. The canyon area was sealed off quickly so no clues could be destroyed. The bodies were removed late last night to an Ottawa funeral home where an autopsy was held. Pieces of Cord The pieces of cord were found around the wrists of two of the victims. Investigators theorized that the assailant or assailants — most believe there were more than one — tied the two together while they attacked the third. Then in a desperate effort to avoid a similar fate, the women pulled apart.

Refuse to Let Irishman Paint Stripe on Street

Dallas, Texas —(AP)— Irishman Walter Conroy is angry with everybody at city hall today because they would not let him paint a green stripe down Main street in honor of St. Patrick's birthday. He bought some green paint and hired a machine to paint the stripe down Main street prior to today's St. Patrick's day parade. "I met every objection," of the people at city hall, Conroy said Wednesday. "I was going to pay for it. I painted it when it wouldn't obstruct traffic. I use paint that would wash off." "And they all said, no," he reported. "I'm so mad. Yes Irish mad. I don't know what to do. I could take my little machine and paint a stripe in front of the mayor's house," Conroy said.

Five Children Die in Blaze

Malvern, Ark. —(AP)— Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williamson died in a fire which destroyed the family's farm home Wednesday. Four older Williamson children were at school. Mrs. Williamson, 33, was in a state of shock. She said she had left the children asleep in the small frame house while she went to visit a neighbor. The 39-year-old father was at work. A passerby saw the house in flames. He and others tried to enter but they were driven back. The bodies of Donald Lewis, 6; Robert Lee, 5; Edward Dean, 4; Anthony William, 2; and Mary Catherine, 1, were found in the ruins. "The Mighty Midget" To Place a WANT-AD Dial 3-4411

Victims of Slaying Had Much in Common

Three Women Active in Affairs of Church, School, Suburban Community

Chicago—(AP)—The three suburban Riverside matrons whose bludgeoned bodies were found in Starved Rock State park near Ottawa, Ill., yesterday had much more in common than death. They were, friends and neighbors agreed, pillars of their community, devoted to home, church and civic affairs. They are already deeply missed by many in this grief stricken community. All were mothers—two were grandmothers—and they could as easily drop into a discussion of a school bond issue as talk about a new recipe. They were, said a sorrowed friend, "exceptionally happy women and happy companions." Each lived in a warm, roomy home in this western suburb, not five minutes drive from one another. Bound by Faith Probably their most common bond was faith. The victims—Mrs. Mildred Lindquist, 50, Mrs. Lillian Oetting, 50, and Mrs. Frances Murphy, 47—all attended and were prominent in the affairs of the Riverside Presbyterian church. Their husbands are prominent Chicago executives. Mrs. Murphy's husband, Robert, vice president and general counsel for Borg-Warner corporation, is organist at the church. Mrs. Murphy, an avid rose grower, was once society editor of the Moline (Ill.) Dispatch and in Riverside served on the grade school board. Four Children She was the mother of four children: Mrs. Sally Eitz, 23, wife of a marine corporal stationed at Norfolk, Va.; Julie, 19, a sophomore at Tufts college, Boston, John, 17, a student at Bowdoin college in Maine; and Mary, 11, a sixth grader at Riverside elementary school. Mrs. Oetting was a member of the Riverside Garden club. Later this week she was to have led a discussion of Shakespeare at another club. She had three children: Nancy, 22, a high school Spanish teacher; Judith, 19, a student at Lawrence college, Appleton, Wis., and George, 28, an air force lieutenant stationed in London. Mrs. Oetting's husband, George, general supervisor of internal audits for Illinois Bell Telephone company, was under a doctor's care. He had only recently returned to work after suffering a heart attack 18 months ago. Mrs. Oetting, said a shocked neighbor, "was one of the kindest, most compassionate persons I've ever known."

Church Work Mrs. Lindquist, mother of two married daughters, had been president of the women's society at the church. She also was a past president of the Riverside Friends of the Library and a former member of the Riverside grade school board of education. Her husband, Robert, is vice president of the Harris Trust and Savings bank. "She had a marvelous personality," said a stunned friend. "She always had a smile." One more common interest proved fatal—love for the outdoors. "They wanted to relax and

Navy Blimp Sets New Air Record

Lakehurst, N. J. —(AP)— A navy airship settled down at its base here after its record-setting crew decided they were tired from three days in the air. The blimp set a record of 72 hours for a submarine patrol exercise when it landed Wednesday. The crew of 24 cruised the Atlantic about 100 miles off the coast. The navy said the exercise demonstrated the ability of an airship to hover over a potential enemy submarine area for an extended period. The previous record for an exercise was set two weeks ago when a blimp stayed aloft 65 hours.

the airport, causing $100,000 damage. At least 18 deaths were attributed to weather's latest violent outbreak, one of a series of storms that has battered wide areas in the eastern half of the nation in the last month.

Later Winter Storm Screams Into Midwest

In the wide belt of fresh snow, falls ranged up to more than a foot in parts of Virginia and in many midwest sections. Heaviest snow was from Iowa through northern Illinois and the Great Lakes region. Heavy snow warnings were issued for eastern Pennsylvania, with falls ranging from 6 to 12 inches and much drifting. The weather bureau also warned of snow up to 6 inches in a belt from northern West Virginia and northern Virginia northward to New York state and southern New England. The storm that hammered the midwest Tuesday and Wednesday was centered this morning over the southern tip of Lake Michigan. Snow continued in most of the northern half of the Mississippi valley and nearby Great Lakes region into the upper Ohio valley.

Gusty Winds The snowstorm, with gusty winds, caused much drifting and forced the closing of hundreds of schools, businesses and airports. Traffic was stalled, travelers marooned and communications disrupted. The storm that hammered the midwest Tuesday and Wednesday was centered this morning over the southern tip of Lake Michigan. Snow continued in most of the northern half of the Mississippi valley and nearby Great Lakes region into the upper Ohio valley.

Candidate's Charm, Wife's Beauty Characterize Visit by Kennedys

BY JEAN HAMMOND
Appleton put on her finery last Friday and allowed herself to be courted. She's an attractive Miss with many charms besides the obvious visually acceptable ones. There is, for instance, her stable economy, which perhaps could be likened to emotional stability in her singular counterpart. And she's independent, for the most part, not prone to prejudice or false philosophy. Furthermore, she makes her choice early in the year and this gives her an advantage over similarly endowed young ladies in other parts of the country.

Appleton enjoys the courtship. She awaits the suitor with eagerness and an air of festivity.
"I don't think he'll be elected this year," a portly gentleman in a gray pin-stripe tells his friend, "but he's got time. Wish I had as much."

Wants to Meet Him
"Well, this year or next time," the friend shrugs, "I just want to shake his hand. You know, Bill, I remember my great-grandmother telling how they brought Lincoln's body through Chicago and all the school kids put flowers on his casket. She never forgot it. She was only 12 years old and she lived to be 90, but she never forgot it. So maybe we'll have something to tell about too."

"Look! There's his wife," an attractive blond worker in a black dress announces to the woman beside her. "Isn't she pretty!"
"And young," the stout woman adds mistily. "My, but she's young."

A wizened man whose chalky skin is accentuated by two bright spots of pink on his cheeks stands alone, waiting. A young woman stops beside him.
"Is he here?" he asks.
"No, but his wife is," she answers. "He'll be along soon."

"I'd like to see him get in," the old man confides. "He's young. And smart. And he doesn't need the money," he laughs. "His father gave each of his kids a million dollars when they came of age."
"My!" the woman exclaims. "Well, I'll bet he thought a long time before deciding to accept it," she smiles.
'He's Coming!'
"He's coming, he's coming! Clear a path for the senator."

The smiling legislator whose forehead is creased and whose shoulders droop slightly with weariness exchanges glances with his wife. She steps to his side and they follow a color guard to the stage.
People listen. They do not expect to hear anything world-shattering, but his words and his voice are directed at them. It's a personal thing, not to be taken lightly. Then the reception line forms.

"What do you think, Frank?"
"Well, he's got lots of vitality. I'll say that for him."
"He needs it! Have you read about the pace he's keeping?"
"I think, of the lot, he'll give Nixon the toughest time."
"Yeah, but he can't win. I think what I'll do is vote for Humphrey."
"The way things are," another man adds, "I don't think it makes much difference who gets the job."
"He looks just like the boy next door," a woman whispers to her husband.
"Well, his wife doesn't look like any of our neighbors," the man replies.

Variety of People
The line moves along. One by one they take the hand of the senator, then of his smiling wife. There is a junior high school English teacher and his wife. A dry cleaner. A group of mill workers. A judge. An old lady with trembling hands. Young boys. They wear pleased proud smiles and occasionally one of them wishes the senator 'good luck'. An enterprising young man attempts to sell him a ticket to a St. Patrick's day party.
"Buy a Kennedy pin?" a worker addresses an elderly woman. "It's a replica of the PT boat the senator was on during the war. And that's quite a story in itself," the woman adds. "Buy one and keep it as a souvenir for your grandchildren."
"My dear young woman," the lady replies, her eyes sparkling, "I have no grandchildren, and as my husband is no longer here and I'm not keeping steady company it isn't too likely I'll have any."

"Oh," the worker laughs along with her, "a good-looking young girl like you should be ashamed of herself. Well, then have one for mine!"
"Yes," another worker adds, "she'll have plenty. She has seven children!"
Something Missing
"Something missing here," an old timer announces, "a keg of beer and a case of good Irish whisky. Be just like old times, wouldn't it? Yep! Politics ain't what they used to be."
"I don't like her hair," a dowdy woman states critically.
Finally everyone who wishes to do so has met the man from Massachusetts and he and his wife take their leave. Their sudden absence leaves the gathering slightly undone, as when the thread is pulled from a string of pearls.

St. Patrick's People

In a melting pot nation such as the United States, the custom of celebrating the Wearin' O' The Green goes on every year more than the national holiday of any other foreign country. Whether the Irish saying that there are only two kinds of people, the Irish and those who wish they were, is actually accurate, there are few who don't join in the celebration. St. Patrick's day may fall during Lent but there are spoken or unspoken dispensations. And the Dutch, the Swede and the Italian children wear green ribbons and sweaters on March 17.

No one can account for this enthusiasm and surely no one would dare to try to write a definitive interpretation of the Irish people. But Sean O'Faolain has published what he calls a character study of his people. And his discussion explains better than anything why the Irish Republican Army keeps storing explosives although the Republicanism of the early revolt has long been forgotten and the citizens of Ulster are largely English and uninterested in joining Eire. There is something in Mr. O'Faolain's little book which indicates why the Irish remain Irish no matter where they live, and what their particular appeal is to other peoples.

The Irish rebels, writes Mr. O'Faolain,

"choked the critical side of their minds... they devoted their lives and all their beings to passion rather than to thought... the whole of Irish patriotic literature has concerned itself with matters of sentiment rather than thought; Irish political thought is thus, to this day, in its infancy... As an idea Republicanism in Ireland aborted. The countryman who has invaded the towns is now fumbling there in an ungainly fashion because his intellectual leaders were so damnably unintellectual."

But Mr. O'Faolain also notes that the primary contribution of the Celtic mind to the modern Irish is "an ineradicable love of individual liberty." This may take such an extreme form that it "tends to make all Irishmen inclined to respect no laws at all; and though this may be socially deplorable, it is so humanly admirable, and makes life so much more tolerable and charitable and easygoing and entertaining," that perhaps it is worth the argument and the passion and the ire.

"The Irishman the world over is to this day a nonconformist and a rebel," concludes Mr. O'Faolain. "It is one of his great gifts to an over-regimented world."

And so is St. Patrick's day even if the saint himself had to borrow his nationality.

The Man and the Genie

Once upon a time a man, in the time of adversity, found a genie whose help eased his trouble. The man was grateful and, because the genie was small, the man granted him his small needs and the genie stayed with the man to help him in the troubles into which he seemed to keep falling.

As time passed the genie seemed to grow on his diet of ever increasing troubles and little largess. Soon the man started to take the genie for granted.

The man couldn't be blamed since the genie's help appeared to be automatic. If the man in his zeal stripped his land of trees without thought of the consequences, the genie would be at his elbow to succor him when Nature in the form of swollen rivers crashed down her devastating punishment on his thoughtlessness. If the man, in his carelessness, destroyed his goods in fearful fires, the genie was handy with balm and assistance.

If the man became argumentative and fought frightful battles with his neighbors, the genie brought solace and gentle care to ease their thoughtless cruelty. If the man was caught in the apparent whimsy of Nature in her terrifying earthquakes and winds, the genie interposed his body between the man and the extreme suffering of the disaster.

All this and much more the genie did without being asked, without being summoned, without confusion or trouble. He grew in size to meet the needs of the man's growing troubles and the genies own needs grew with the size the man demanded of it.

The man was very busy, plunging headlong into new works and new frontiers. His interests became spread over vast reaches. So widespread were his interests that a disaster striking one of them would hardly be felt in the area of his other interests. At the time of disaster the man would feel a vague concern and a twinge of gratitude, but between disasters he became forgetful and he began to begrudge the genie his relatively small needs.

Soon the genie suffered from this lack of consideration and his strength began to weaken, his facilities — stretched to such great distances and varied demands — became inadequate and when man suffered the greatest disaster of his life, he found himself without the help of the genie and in his misery he cursed the ingratitude and selfishness that lost him his helper.

This has been a parable about the Red Cross and its services. Its flesh and blood are the volunteer workers led by trained professionals, but its strength comes from the financial backing it receives annually during its fund campaign. As the tale's genie withered because of ingratitude and forgetfulness, so could the Red Cross. However, we feel the public's awareness is more constant than the man's in the story and the real-life story will have a happier and wiser ending than did the fable.

Those Highway Edge Lines

The state highway department's annual report notes with some pride that the agency has had a pleasing public response to its recent program of painting edge lines along some of the major segments of the state trunk highway system during the last year.

To such expressions of public gratification that the commission has already received, we would add our own. There are not many other things that the traffic engineers of the state department have achieved lately that have contributed so directly to driving ease and pleasure — not to mention safety. In combination with the center lines that are now provided on many of our public roads, these additional markings are especially useful and reassuring in the nighttime hours and during periods of difficult weather.

We are aware that these improvements are costly. But it will seem to many of the dues-payers contributing to the state highway department's steadily growing budget that imaginative maintenance and traffic controls are as important to the use of the roads as is the original investment in pavement and substructure.

-But Is It Worth Living?

Norman Cousins, a sincere advocate of world peace and brotherhood, nuclear test bans, and acceptance of coexistence with the Soviet Union and Red China, has listed as the greatest challenge of the next decade the not-so-simple matter of "survival." Even with Mr. Cousins' modifications, the statement is frightening.

It may seem obvious that if the world is swept clean of all life, things like justice, peace, love and liberty will be unimportant. And yet, if survival is picked as the most important thing to face us in the future, what sort of a world will we have? We might look at the past for a clue.

If all the strivings of men through history had been for survival, tyrants would have ruled from the very beginning. The man with the biggest stick, the heaviest chains, the deepest dungeons always would have been supreme. He would have been challenged only by those who wanted to rule in his stead or by those actually threatened by extinction. Christianity would not have survived a decade for there would have been no Christians. Left Ericson and Columbus would not have ventured out on the vast Atlantic. America would not have been discovered or explored. There would have been no Reformation, no Renaissance, no Enlightenment. The Puritans could not have existed. Paul Revere would never have ridden. There would have been no American Revolution, no Civil war, not because of advanced humanity but because nothing could be considered worth dying for. The important things would be food and clothing. Sacrifice, charity, love would be nonexistent.

We don't care particularly about surviving in such a world. We don't really think Mr. Cousins does either.

Television Public Service Programs are at Minimum

From The Charlotte News

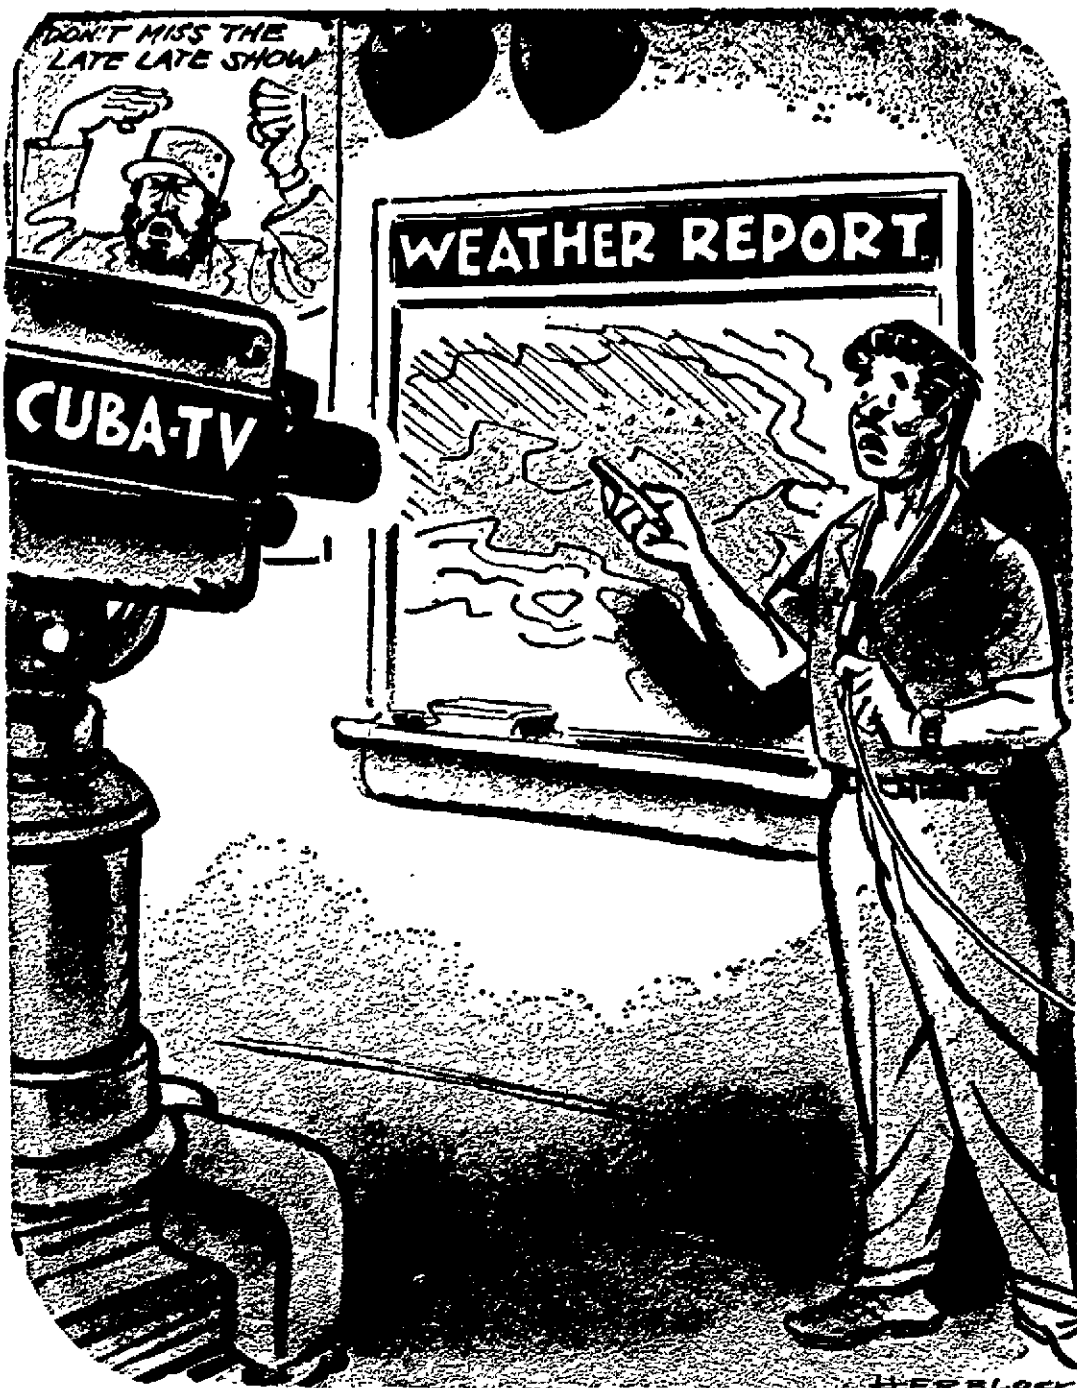

The suggestion in some quarters that U. S. television networks rate a round of applause for earmarking at least one hour a week for public service programming is somewhat absurd.

Higher standards cannot be introduced by a stop-watch — and certainly not by one that promises only 60 minutes of sustained enlightenment during the course of an entire week of broadcasting.

It is true that the 60-min-suggests rather that the networks are bowing to expediency. It suggests, too, that they had to be nudged by Chairman John C. Doerfer of the federal communications commission before they were even willing to offer this limited diet of public service programming. It was Doerfer who suggested that statistical pledges be spelled out — and he did so at a time when the networks were bravely proclaiming that they alone should be guardians of their own destinies.

If the broadcasters have yielded to twinges of conscience, they have yielded half-heartedly and somewhat unconvincingly.

Demands on Feeder Air Lines Cost Taxpayers More Money

Editor, Post-Crescent:

I know the airport question is temporarily at rest but nevertheless I would like to bring to the attention of your readers the following editorial that appeared in the Milwaukee Journal on March 12, 1960. I would like those people who object to local financing of airport expenditures to know just what they are contributing to North Central Airlines through their federal taxes and how they can be charged for more subsidy should the operation of North Central be obliged to become more inefficient.

Richard Heimzkill

Appleton

SUBSIDY TO FEEDER AIR LINES

Federal air line subsidy continues to mount and almost all of it goes to local service lines, sometimes called "feeder" lines, that carry only a small fraction of the domestic air traffic. In his budget message, President Eisenhower noted that estimated air line subsidies for next year would reach $69 million and that "the rise and prospect of even higher subsidies in the future make necessary consideration of proposals to reduce the dependence of these air lines on the government."

The situation is one that should draw much interest in Wisconsin. Our proportionate share of the cost of a $69 million subsidy, through our federal taxes, would be around $1.4 million.

Wisconsin is served by two local service air lines, Ozark and North Central. North Central gets a large share of its income from Wisconsin, especially from Milwaukee-Chicago traffic. Many Wisconsin communities feel the importance of its service for travel and fast air mail delivery. More than $7 million of next year's direct federal air line subsidies is expected to go to North Central, in addition to pay for carrying mail.

Already pressures are being put on local service carriers to reduce excessive costs. The federal government could help them with this, also in boosting their net earnings somewhat.

Two factors contribute heavily to high costs for these carriers — small load factors (too many empty seats) and short hops. Passengers take short trips, less than one-third as long as trunk line passengers. And "ground service" costs, including ticketing expense, are about the same for a passenger traveling 50 miles as one flying 1,500 miles. So local carriers may seek a special commission for selling through tickets for passengers continuing their trips on trunk lines.

The more often a plane must make a scheduled stop, the poorer the service and the higher the operating costs. That bears on the dispute as to whether there should be two or three or only one central commercial airport for air line service to Wisconsin Rapids, Stevens Point and Marshfield.

It is time to take a harder look at the whole business. Almost every community, no matter how small or remote, would like to have air line service close at hand. But how many can hope to generate traffic to pay the cost? And for how many is such service so absolutely vital that it must be provided at continuing heavy expense to the nation's taxpayers?

Detects an Error in Tax Division

Editor, Post-Crescent:

In your issue of Friday, March 11, 1960, you have a lengthy article headed — "A Town's Dilemma — II." I regret that you found it necessary to quote figures that are far away from the true facts. I refer to your statement that a local municipality receives a return of 50 per cent of the state income tax. Such is not the case, nor has it been for some few years back. A few years ago our legislature skimmed off about 12 to 14 per cent of our

Jack Olson Has GOP Worried Over Plans

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Another divisive quarrel about the pre-primary endorsement practice of the voluntary state Republican organization would be in the making.

Jack Olson of Wisconsin Dells, a newcomer to state politics who is a candidate for the endorsement of the Republican delegate convention in May, has declined to say what he will do if he doesn't win it and it goes to another, such as Philip Kuehn of Milwaukee, his only announced rival thus far.

Olson has evaded the inquiries of newsmen and such local politicians as he has encountered thus far in his campaign travels.

He has turned them aside with the remark that he hasn't even thought of the possibility of losing the convention nod. He always has been interested in athletics, has always sought the prize and always managed to win it, he says.

It is highly improbable, however, that such replies to queries which Republican campaign workers regard as legitimate will satisfy many of them. There is a strong probability, indeed, that when the district conventions of the party are held soon and Olson visits them in the hope of getting delegate commitments, he will be required to answer more specifically.

THE GUESSING

A good guess is that he has thought about the possibility of losing out in the convention, and that he knows precisely what he will thereupon do. He will continue to run, as the anti-organization candidate, in effect recalling the several other instances in which aspirants who did not pass muster at a delegate convention nevertheless went on to get the nomination in the open primary.

There are several conspicuous examples, the late Gov. Walter S. Goodland in 1946, as perhaps the best remembered. Sen. Alexander Wiley in 1950, and Secretary of State Robert C. Zimmerman, before he became secretary, in 1956.

Such precedents have a certain appeal and they have persuaded other candidates for high office nomination in other years.

But there is a significant difference between Wiley and Goodland, and even Zimmerman, and Olson, who is relatively unknown, doesn't have a record, and apparently has not yet developed any easily grasped, popular issues in support of his own ambition. Moreover, the very close margin of Wiley's victory showed, in reverse, that the Republican convention endorsement is actually worth a good deal more in vote power than some of the anti-Republican critics are willing to concede.

THE ISSUE

There is nothing even remotely wrong in Mr. Olson's desire to compete in the open primary against all comers for the nomination to the highest office in state politics. The primary is based upon the principle that everyone is entitled to run.

As many Republicans see it, however, a candidate's position becomes equivocal when he says that he wants the organization's backing, believes it is important enough to stump the state for, but won't exchange for it the pledge to support the man of his choice if its judgment dictates that another candidate is preferable.

The candidate who wants to run against the organization would be in more logical position, in that view, if he made no bid for the convention endorsement whatever. Consistency is not always practiced in politics, but it is a desirable goal nevertheless. The quid pro quo rule remains a basic method of operations.

A primary contest between an endorsed candidate and an anti-organization man would add considerably to the flavor of state politics this year and perhaps attract more than ordinary attention to the Republican campaign. But it would be an enervating development, nevertheless, as most of the realists in the party are aware.

Lawrence Says Dodd Study Shows USSR View on Jews Says Soviet State Itself Instigated Anti-Semitic Crimes

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, Democrat, of Connecticut, has made a startling revelation of the extent to which the Soviets have carried on an intensive campaign of anti-Semitism. As a former executive trial lawyer, Mr. Dodd has no illusions about Nazism and the traces of its bigotry which may remain in both West and East Germany today. But his exhaustive analysis, comprising more than 10,000 words, just presented to the United States senate, points the finger of blame for the recent "Swastika epidemic" on the Soviet government itself.

"The Kremlin," he says, "has conducted and is conducting today an anti-Semitic propaganda strongly reminiscent of Goebbels and Streicher."

Mr. Dodd praises Chancellor Adenauer and the West German government for the progress it has made in the de-nazification of West Germany, and adds that the record of the Adenauer government on anti-Semitism is beyond reproach, even though there is much still to be done in Germany.

But the Connecticut senator charges that East Germany, on the other hand, has opened its ranks to the most vicious nazis and nazi collaborators, and that the same thing is true in other countries taken over by the communists.

No Accident

"We must make people understand," declares Sen. Dodd, "that anti-Christianism goes with anti-Semitism, as Godlessness goes with totalitarianism. It is no accident, in my opinion, that the two great Godless movements of our time, nazism and communism, should both be vehemently anti-Semitic."

Sen. Dodd prepared his speech for delivery in the senate but, because of his illness, the document was placed in "the congressional record" by Sen. George A. Smathers, Democrat, of Florida, who said that it was "so significant and timely that it should be brought to the attention of the American people."

Sen. Dodd says that in many countries, including the United States, there is a residue of anti-Semitism, but that nowhere in the world are Jews oppressed as they are in the Soviet Union today. He declares:

"Between the brutality of Soviet anti-Semitism and the brutality of nazi anti-Semitism, there is little to choose. About all that is lacking so far is the gas chambers."

Instigated by State

"The crimes that have characterized Soviet anti-Semitism have not been perpetrated by hotheads or juvenile delinquents. They have been perpetrated, or else instigated, by the Soviet state itself—first under the command of Joseph Stalin, and then under the command of the present prime minister, Nikita Khrushchev.

"How does the free world react to the merciless persecution of the 3,000,000 Jews in the Soviet Union? It closes its eyes to it. Instead of protests and indignation, we witness demands for increased trade with the Soviet bloc, for stepped-up cultural exchange programs, for state visits by the Soviet terrorist-in-chief."

The Connecticut senator explains that he cannot escape the feeling that the evidence of communist involvement in the swastika-painting episodes unearthed by the West German authorities "tells only a small part of the story." He continues:

Excluded From Posts

"Since the end of the war the chief breeding place of the virus of anti-Semitism has not been Germany nor has the chief instigator been the neo-nazi movement. The chief breeding place has been, and remains today, the Soviet Union. The chief instigator is the communist international."

"So far as is known, no Jew is to be found in the foreign service (of the Soviet Union), among the higher ranks of the armed forces, or in the various military academies. Jews are also excluded from leading posts in the communist party, from the central party newspapers and the foreign section of the Soviet press. Jews are progressively being excluded from admission to the universities."

Mr. Dodd declares that, as he was finishing his analysis, he received a communication from a group of professors of the social sciences division of Fairleigh Dickinson university, who had toured the Soviet Union last summer. He says they had been "appalled" by the many evidences of Soviet anti-Semitism. They wrote:

"Our observations have led us to the unhappy conclusion that anti-Semitism in the USSR is not a remnant of Czarist Russia, but is the official policy of the government of the USSR."

Pirates' Daniels, Umbricht Combine To No-Hit Tigers

Landrith's 11th-Inning Homer Gives Giants Win Over Cubs

By The Associated Press
Pittsburgh right-handers Bennie Daniels and Jim Umbricht combined for a no-hit

Eight Schools Begin Quest Of State Title

Two Games Slated Tonight In Madison

Madison — The Wisconsin high school basketball tournament starts today at the University of Wisconsin fieldhouse.

When the final game is over Saturday night, there will be a new champion—the only team to emerge undefeated from a field of 440 which began playoffs three weeks ago.

Lincoln, the 1959 champion, was knocked off in the regionals.

Waukesha, undefeated in 24 games this season, was picked by many to take the title as it did in 1944.

Green Bay West was to be the Blackshirts' opponent at 3 p.m.

The opening game at 1:30 pitted Gale-Ettrick against Wausau.

The evening schedule finds Menomonie playing Watertown at 7 and Racine Park tackling Rice Lake at 8:30.

Gale-Ettrick, representing a school of 252 students, is the sentimental favorite. Not since Reedsville won the crown in 1946 has a district team gone all the way to the top.

Substitutes Stage Exciting TV Match

Chestnut Weathers Knockdown To Defeat Jeffrey

Cleveland, Ohio — Leroy Jeffrey of Detroit figures he learned enough Wednesday night from wily Ike Chestnut to reverse the 10-round decision he lost to the veteran New Yorker in a televised fight.

The two featherweights, last-minute substitutes in the main event as a knee injury to Mike DeJohn of Syracuse erased his bout with Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., put on a whole of a scrap. Both weighed 130.

Promoter Larry Atkins, in a frantic last minute effort to keep the show on the road, contacted Ike and Leroy Wednesday morning. Ike flew in from New York, but Jeffrey—despite a wind-blown snowstorm raging in the Lakes area—elected to drive from Detroit.

But the 23-year-old ex-collegian almost won it all. He sank a left hook into Ike's mid-section in the seventh, bringing a combined whine and moan from the New Yorker who backed away holding his hands over the injured spot.

Jeffrey tore in, landed two more to the same spot, and Ike was down for a 6 count. He got up, badly hurt, weathered the round and went on to win a close but unanimous decision.

Irked because the heavy-weight go was cancelled, hundreds of fans received ticket refunds, but $3,224 finally arrived to pay $5,353.

Dallas Selects Two Johnsons, Healy From Bears

Dallas, Texas — The Dallas Rangers of the National Football league have announced selection of three players from the Chicago Bears.

ter in Wednesday's 5-0 exhibition victory over Detroit. Daniels worked five innings and Umbricht four.

In other games, the New York Yankees downed Washington, 1-0. Kansas City walloped Baltimore, 8-1. San Francisco edged the Chicago Cubs, 7-6, on Hobbie Landrith's eleventh inning homer and the Boston Red Sox, led by Frank Malzone, whipped Cleveland, 8-2. The Los Angeles-Cincinnati and St. Louis-Philadelphia games were cancelled because of bad weather.

Called After 8
The Yanks-Senators game was called after eight innings because of rain. Two walks and an error by third baseman Harmon Killebrew enabled the Yanks to pick up their run in the second. Johnny James, up from Richmond of the International league, struck out seven in four innings.

Kansas City got some neat pitching from Ned Garver, "Bud" Daley and Dick Hall, who combined to hold Baltimore to seven hits.

Landrith got his game-winning homer off Jim Brewer, who had just come on in the eleventh. The Cubs scored three times off Ramon Montañez in the first, but the Giants rebounded to tie the score in the eighth when Bob Anderson's wild pitch sent Felipe Alou home.

Malzone batted in four runs with three hits in three at bats as Boston won its fourth in a row. Tom Sturdivant, Frank Sullivan and Ted Bowsfield combined to hold Cleveland to nine hits.

ABC Adds Baseball Game-of-the-Week

To be Televised Saturdays; Boxing Moves From Friday Night to New Slot Oct. 8

New York — There will be fewer Saturday nights out for busy boxers and hopeful housewives come Oct. 8.

That's the date television professional boxing switches to Saturday nights.

And there will be a little less lawn cutting and car washing on Saturday afternoons come April 16.

That's the date a fifth major league game-of-the-week, featuring the San Francisco Giants, starts on network television.

The American Broadcasting Co., bankrolled principally by the Gillette Safety Razor Co., announced the changes in sports TV Wednesday in a follow-up to Tuesday's purchase of the college football TV rights for the next two seasons.

Half the Cost
Gillette said it has invested $84 million in the new fight series, baseball and college football. And a company spokesman said this would cover half the cost of the rights and air time, bringing the over-all estimate of the 3-sport program to $17 million.

Only the recently completed $20 million 5-year contract between the major leagues and the National Broadcasting company for the World Series and All-Star game rights exceeds that figure in the history of sports TV.

Gillette said it will continue sponsorship of these events and the Rose bowl football game on NBC but that it will no longer sponsor the triple crown horse racing series on the Columbia Broadcasting system.

The "Friday Night fights"—TV's oldest continuous program—will disappear from both NBC radio and TV on June 24.

Six years ago, there was only one baseball game-of-the-week. Now NBC and CBS have one each on both Saturdays and Sundays. The ABC baseball, however, will not be in direct competition as it will start at 4 p.m., two to three hours later than the others have started in the past.

The Giants, with 13 Saturday daylight home games, will form the backbone of the series. Washington and Kansas City also have agreed to participate and schedule their games for a later start than usual. At least one other team is needed to maintain an unbroken 25-week series.

Vike Point Honors Taken by Knocke

Edges Rasmussen, Last Season's Record-Breaker, by 39 Points

Lawrence college's "Chuck" Knocke and Jim Rasmussen, who both bettered the previous school scoring record in the 1958-9 campaign, tapered off during the 1959-60 season.

Rasmussen, who had tallied 403 markers during his sophomore year to establish a new school mark, slumped to 277 during the just-completed campaign. Knocke, who hit 400 on the head in 1958-9, dropped to 316, good enough for individual honors, this time.

Dick Rine's 333 in 1956-7 was the previous record.

Knocke averaged 144 for the 22-game Lawrence schedule while Rasmussen's per-game mark this season was 12.6. Loren Wolf, former Shawano High all-stater, who played the last nine games, averaged 13.8, second high to Knocke.

Every man who scored for Lawrence has further eligibility remaining. George Gray, Don Bergman and John Hackworthy left the squad during the season.

In winning five of their 22 starts, the Vikes had a per-game scoring average of 62.2. The enemy average was 71.0. Last season's respective totals were 64.6 and 72.3. The won-loss mark was Lawrence's best in five seasons.

Michigan Favors Post-Season Play In All Sports

Ann Arbor, Mich. — The University of Michigan athletic board favors NCAA post-season play in all sports for all Big Ten schools.

The board in control of intercollegiate athletics voted at a meeting Wednesday night.

At the recent Big Ten meeting, the Rose bowl football game was abandoned and conference athletic directors then proposed a ban on all post-season events. A final verdict will come at the Big Ten meeting at East Lansing, Mich., in May.

Michigan, one of five schools which voted for the Rose bowl game, long has advocated post-season play.

Scottsdale, Ariz. — The Red Sox Wednesday traded Catcher Sammy White and Infielder-Outfielder Jim Marshall to the Indians for left-handed hitting Catcher Russ

White Nixon

Nixon. The announcement of the deal followed two days of conferences between general managers Frank Lane of Cleveland and Bucky Harris of Boston.

The 25-year-old Nixon batted .240 last year and hit one home run. Two years ago Nixon hit nine homers and batted .301.

The 31-year-old White batted .284 last year. The Hose acquired Marshall during the off-season from the Cubs in a deal involving Dick Gernert and Bobby Thomson.

Weber Takes ABC All-Events Lead With 1,947

Toledo, Ohio — The national prestige of the St. Louis Budweisers, which took a beating when they rolled a 2-837 series in the American Bowling congress team event Tuesday night, rebounded sharply Wednesday as Dick Weber and Bill Lillard moved into upper registers of the all-events and singles divisions.

After a middling 591 in the team event Tuesday, Weber marched smartly back with 685 in the doubles and 671 in the singles to batter his 9-game aggregate to 1,947, giving him the lead in the all-events by a margin of 58.

Despite a modest contribution of 562 by Ray Bluth, Weber and his partner were able to snag fifth place in the doubles on a 1,247 total.

After his 586 in the team event, Lillard came to life with 624 in the doubles and 661 in the singles. His 1,871 aggregate earned him third place in the all events.

Braves Hand Chisox First Setback, 4-2

Spahn Hurls Runless Ball For 5 Frames

Bradenton, Fla. — Manager Charlie Dressen says it looks as though most of his worries are over—his Milwaukee Braves seem in better physical shape than he thought they were.

Hurler Warren Spahn, catcher Del Crandall and second baseman "Red" Schoendienst turned in top performances Wednesday as the Braves downed the Chicago White Sox, 4-2.

"I could have gone the full nine innings," Spahn said. "But Charlie was going by the number of pitches. He pulled me out when he thought I had enough."

Troublesome Knee
Spahn had undergone surgery earlier this winter to correct a troublesome knee. He said it held up well and there wasn't a sign that he would have difficulty as the season progresses.

Dressen said that the 81 pitches Spahn threw in the five innings he worked were sufficient for a spring training game.

"He threw a lot of curves," Dressen said. "If he can throw curves like that during the season, he could beat Los Angeles. Curve balls beat that club pretty good."

Crandall, who caught all nine innings, had been to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., just before he reported for training.

Crandall received a clean bill of health and was told not to worry about a stiffness in his back, that it would work out as he got himself in shape.

Dressen wanted to lift Crandall after six innings but he insisted on playing the full nine.

Schoendienst, for the time he played, came through with a run-scoring hit and seemed close to his old form at second base, Dressen said.

Gives Up 2 Runs
It was the first loss of the season for the American league defending champion Chicago White Sox.

Spahn was followed by Ron Piche and Don McMahon. Piche gave up the two runs for the losers in the eighth inning.

The Braves got three of their runs off Chicago starter Barry Latman in the second inning. Crandall had two singles and batted in two runs.

The Braves scored their fourth run off Frank Baumann in the fifth inning.

Milwaukee outhit Chicago, 9-7, to put its spring training record at 2-2.

Schlytter Reports To Braves' Camp

Wittenberg — Alan Schlytter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Schlytter, has reported to the Milwaukee Braves' minor league spring training camp at Waycross, Ga.

A southpaw pitcher, Schlytter, was signed to a bonus contract last September. He attended Wisconsin State college, Stevens Point, for the first semester of this school year.

Wolfner Says Transfer Of Cardinals Isn't 'Absolutely Settled'

7 Per Cent City-State Admission Tax in St. Louis Called Major Stumbling Block

BY CHUCK CAPALDO
St. Louis — Managing Director Walter Wolfner asserted Wednesday the transfer of the National Football league Chicago Cardinals to St. Louis was not "absolutely settled."

The major stumbling block, said Wolfner just before returning to Chicago, is a 7 per cent admissions tax.

"The people I've been dealing with never told me about the tax," he said. "The first I heard about the 5 per cent city and 2 per cent state tax on admissions was when I came here."

Wolfner said the city-state tax, plus the 10 per cent federal amusement tax, and rental on Busch stadium would mean "pretty close to a 30 per cent bite right off the top."

"This is a very serious matter," he continued, "a really staggering thing."

"We held some conversations in reference to the local tax situation, but the problem really hasn't been resolved yet."

"We hope to reconcile the thing, possibly obtain some tax relief, at least until a new, bigger stadium is built. We have an out on our contract, but we don't want to use it."

Approves Switch
The NFL approved the switch of the Cardinals last weekend. The plan was for the Cards to play their six home games in 32,000-seat Busch stadium, home of the baseball Cardinals, until a proposed 55,000-seat riverfront stadium is completed—perhaps by 1963.

Under discussion was a plan to erect temporary bleachers at Busch stadium to seat 7,400 persons. The bleachers would block the right field pavilion, making total capacity 32,500.

"With the taxes and a 32,000-seat stadium," Wolfner observed in a telephone interview, "we haven't got much leeway. If we get bad weather, there's no way to recover any losses. We'll be lucky to get a new stadium by '63."

Ohio State, Big Ten champions and New York university, the sleeper in this basketball spectacular, arrived today and will work out in the evening on the Cow palace floor.

The two squads meet in the opener Friday night.

Then comes the Cincinnati-California game. Both teams have 27-1 records. Cincinnati, whipped by the defending champion Bears in the semifinals last year, wound up the season ranked the best team in the nation. California was rated No. 2.

The NCAA has refused to permit television on the semifinals, but has okayed a live, local telecast of the Saturday championship game.

Misfortune struck Ohio State Wednesday when starter John Havlicek, 6-foot, 5 sophomore, injured his right hand on a towel rack. Nine stitches were required to sew up two fingers on the hand.

The wound was painful, but the Buckeye team physician said Havlicek could play Friday.

Racine Park Stresses Defense, Control Ball

Meets 'Hunt and Peck' Rice Lake Quintet Tonight

Madison — (U) — Defense-minded Racine Park and a wily Rice Lake squad will top off the first round action tonight in the Wisconsin State High School Basketball tournament.

"We're just going down there to hunt and peck," Rice Lake Coach Bob Tene said. "We don't play any certain style of ball. We go according to what the other school does. We don't like to play their game."

And what is Racine Park's game? Coach Don Gardner calls it single pivot type of basketball.

"We play a controlled game," he said. "We're not in a big hurry. We emphasize defense."

The Warriors from Rice Lake go into tournament action with a record of 20 victories and two losses for the season. They took the Heart O' North conference championship with 12 straight triumphs.

Tene said he will start Larry Shervy and Gene Larson at forward, Harold Shudlick at center, and Pete Huggdahl and Mike Miller in the guard spots. Shervy and Shudlick both stand 6-3, Larson is 6-2 and Huggdahl is an even 6 feet.

Racine Park, which ended Big Eight competition in fourth place with a 7-7 record, had the lowest scoring average in the conference with 51.6. Park is not spectacular on offense but has been rated as a team to watch because of its regged defensive record.

Coach Gardner plans to start Tom Mang, Cal Pederson, Don Robinson, Grady Cobb and John Spicos. He said he will substitute Willie Alexander for Spicos sometime in the first half and then alter the positions of other players.

Mang is his tallest player at 6-3.

Peg Rutten rattled a 518 for Nadel's to pace the Elks National wheel. Nadel's Margaret Bentle topped a 199 game. Pond's (52-23) is six games ahead of the pack.

'Flash' Elorde KO's Gomes In Big Upset

Manila — (U) — Gabriel "Flash" Elorde of the Philippines knocked out world junior lightweight champion Harold Gomes of Providence, R.I., tonight in the fifth round of their title bout.

Weyenberg Sets 27 Records at Kaukauna

A total of 27 school records were established and one was tied during the great prep career of Kaukauna High basketball star LeRoy Weyenberg, which ended in the Menasha regional finals.

The two major records for the 6-foot-5 Weyenberg were: most points in high school career, 1,003; and most points in one season, 488, tallied during the just-concluded campaign.

Weyenberg's 171 field goals in 1959-60 were the top number in one season and his 146 free throws were also a new high. His 17 free throws in succession against Green Bay East, Clintonville and Shawano this year also established a mark.

Best in History

Weyenberg's 23.2 per-game average this season is the best in school history and his 877 tallies during the past two campaigns is the top Ghost 2-year record ever.

His 41 points against New London as a junior is the top single-game effort in Kaukauna history.

Senior Bill Borchardt established a Kaukauna school mark for most assists in one season, 36, during the past campaign. Myron Zachowski's 149 defensive rebounds in 1959-60 was also a record.

Weyenberg's other records follow, as well as a list of the top 10 Ghost career scorers and the top five 1-season efforts. (The record Weyenberg tied was for most field goals in one game (16) originally set by Jim Otte vs. New London in 1955. Weyenberg equalled it against the Bulldogs in his 41-point game.)

McCartan Is Satisfied With His NHL Play

Suffers First Loss, Hopes to Join Rangers Next Season

New York — (U) — Jack McCartan left for his St. Paul, Minn., home today, satisfied that he had done a good job as a 4-game goalie with the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

"Actually, I can't say I'm a bit disappointed, except for last night's game," said the goalie who helped lead the United States to its first hockey gold medal in the recent Winter Olympics.

The Boston Bruins stayed in the race for a Stanley cup playoff berth, beating McCartan and the Rangers, 3-2, at Madison Square garden. It was his only loss after a victory and two ties on home ice, during which time he allowed only seven goals.

The former University of Minnesota standout, on leave from Ft. Carson, Colo., said he wanted to come back and play for the Rangers next year but wouldn't discuss it further.

He is due to leave the Army in July.

Believe it or not, there are still some seasoned baseball men who are not very clear on the infield fly rule. Here is a simulated case involving a play that causes added confusion to those not fully familiar with the rule.

If you know the answer to this one, you are an expert on the infield fly rule.

The Chicago Cubs are playing the Milwaukee Braves. They have one out, George

Alman on second and Frank Thomas on first. Warren Spahn is on the mound, pitching to Ernie Banks. The Cubs' slugging shortstop hits a high fly ball to the right of second base. It appears to be an easy catch for Felix Mantilla and umpire Tom Gorman signals the infield fly. A high wind is blowing, however, and it eventually carries the ball foul. Mantilla, circling under the ball, muffs it in foul territory. Altman, who had been tagging up, lit out for third. Mantilla retrieved the ball and threw to Ed Mathews who made the tag on the sliding runner.

Do you think that:

a. Banks is out?

b. Altman is out?

c. Banks bats over again and Altman returns to second?

d. Banks bats over again and Altman is out?

Boston Forced To Fight Off Philadelphia Rally

By The Associated Press

The St. Louis Hawks, who want to win the National Basketball association championship as they did two years ago, try to make it two straight tonight over the Minneapolis Lakers in the Western division playoffs.

The Hawks, who were upset by the Lakers in the Western finals a year ago, won Wednesday night, 112-99, to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-7 series. Boston holds a 1-0 lead in the Eastern finals after beating Philadelphia, 111-105. These two are idle tonight.

55-42 Halftime Lead

The Hawks never let the Lakers get close after the first eight minutes and pulled to a 55-42 halftime lead.

Tom Heinsohn and Bill Sharman came off the Boston bench late in the game to fight off a closing Warrior rush. Boston led by only two, 104-102, at one juncture but the two helped the Celtics out of danger. Will Chamberlain led Philly with 42 points.

Boston, playing "only 65 percent of its potential" according to Capt. Bob Cousy, has the jump in the playoffs thanks to its defense against Philadelphia cornermen.

In the Boston dressing room it was agreed that the key was holding Paul Arizin to 18 and Woody Sauldsberry to 6.

Wilmer Runge in 584 at Sherwood

Wilmer Runge's 584 for the Sherwood Wreckers showed the way in Sherwood Sportsmen's league kegling earlier in the week.

Homer Goulthard shot a 559 and Ken Kress a 555.

Fast-Breaking Menomoneie '5' Plays Balanced Watertown

Madison—Plenty of action is in the works for the University of Wisconsin Fieldhouse tonight when Watertown and Menomoneie clash in the opening round of the Wisconsin state high school basketball tournament.

"We play as hard as we can all the way," Watertown Coach Harris Grabow said in noting that seven of his team's victories have been by narrow margins.

"We try a lot of running," Coach Lynos "Pete" Hendrickson says of his high-geared Menomoneie Indians.

The game also shapes up as a battle in which height will play an important part.

Menomoneie's high-scoring Dave Sjoggerud stands 6-4 and so does teammate and center Harold Fletcher. Watertown center Bill Mullin is just under 6-5.

Grabow, who has been at Watertown for 14 years, coached his team to a record of 19 victories and two losses for the season.

Evenly Balanced

Grabow notes that Watertown's scoring is evenly distributed with four of his starters already over the 200-mark. The fifth one, forward Dick Rhode, has 190.

In addition to Mullin and Rhode, Watertown will use Dave Engelbrecht at forward and guards Jim Cahoon and Dick Schumann.

Coach Hendrickson looks to who was ineligible in the first semester.

Key man in the backcourt for Menomoneie is 5-foot, 9-inch guard Ron Larson, a clever ball handler and tricky defensive player.

Rounding out the starting lineup is rugged Bob Schroeder, a 6-1 forward, and Wayne Sabatke, a 5-8 guard.

Illinois President Against Ban On All Post-Season Athletics

Chicago — Dr. David Henry, University of Illinois president, has told the board of trustees that he is against the proposed Big Ten ban of all post-season athletics.

Dr. Henry, speaking before the board Wednesday, said that "although this position would appear to be consistent with the Rose bowl position, it is really only an appearance of consistency."

Renewal of a Rose bowl football contract was killed at the Big Ten meetings in Columbus, Ohio, two weeks ago against a ban on all post-season athletics.

among the schools voting against it.

"Post season games in other sports follow closely on the regular season and do not have such effect on the campus as to upset normal life," Dr. Henry said.

"When the faculty senate meets April 11," he added, "I hope it will support the voting of our faculty representative and athletic director at Ohio State."

Faculty representative Leslie A. Bryan and Athletic Director Doug Mills voted against a ban on all post-season athletics.

Lakewood Area Will Become New Winter Sports Center

Lakewood — This outdoor paradise of forests, spring-fed lakes and cool streams is the summer vacationland of people from all over the nation including the Fox Cities area.

Now, local enthusiasts hope to make this sector a winter sports center, as well.

Most of the winter, bulldozers, scrapers and men have hacked away at Paul Bunyan hill. The objective is to carve out ski runs and trails on the forested slopes a mile and a quarter north of this northern Oconto county community.

The undertaking is under the direction of the Lumberjack Mardi Gras association. The proceeds of the annual summer Mardi Gras celebration are being used for the project.

Donald Bartels, president of the MGA, says the main ski run will be 125 feet wide. The beginners' run is practically ready now, and four more runs are being planned. The hill will be completed this year, Bartels estimates, along with ski tows, a chalet, a cafeteria and a ski shop.

A good blacktop town road leads to the sports area from Lakewood, and a large parking area will be adjacent to the chalet.

Seymour Quits as Syracuse Coach

Syracuse, N.Y. — "I'm tired of coaching here. I have no quarrel with anybody. I simply want to get out of the Syracuse picture," Paul Seymour said.

That ended Seymour's 13 years as a player and coach with the Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball association.

Seymour, who announced his resignation Wednesday night, said he had no immediate plans.

He joined the Nats in 1947 and succeeded Al Cervi as coach early in the 1956-57 season. In three seasons, Seymour's teams won 115 games and lost 124.

Answer to 'You Call It'

(C) — Banks bats over again and Altman returns to second. The infield fly relates only to fair balls. Since the ball was foul, the umpire is obliged to reverse himself and let Banks bat again. And since Mantilla muffed the foul, no play can be made on the runners and Altman goes back to second.

TROUT Bait Tip

Even though it is not considered exactly "sporting" in some circles, trout fishing with bait will give you, if you are a beginner, an understanding of trout and their habits that you can acquire in no other way. Every beginner should fish with bait, but without question you should begin to learn how to use flies and artificial lures as soon as possible, because you will have more fun with them.

Lopez Sees No Danger of Age Hurting His Pitching Staff

Sarasota, Fla. — Are age and luck going to be the standbys this year for another American league pennant for the Chicago White Sox?
"Don't you believe it," Sox Manager Al Lopez said Wednesday.

Lopez, who last year led the Sox to their first American league pennant in 40 years, then lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series, sees no danger in the 37-year-old average of four of his pitchers. Gerry Staley, Turk Lown, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia.

"We've added speed and
"Staley throws his sinker power in Gene Freese and and Lown his fast ball usually Minnie Minoso," he pointed who seemed to face doubling of fees (25 to 50 cents annually), may not.

Ald. Tucker Wednesday night reopened the question.
At the March 2 council ses-

Fire Damages Roof, Parts at Auto Body Firm

An overheated chimney set fire to a wood ceiling at the Pierce Auto Body Works, Inc., 315 S. Pierce avenue, and was discovered about 4:30 p.m.
Wednesday.

The fire caused in excess of $2,000 damage to the roof and false ceiling and approximately $4,000 in labor will be expended in cleaning up water on metal parts, firm officials reported.

The fire was discovered when a staff meeting adjourned. Normally the plant would have been closed. Firemen arrived before the fire reached air and a serious blaze was prevented, Douglas A. Ogilvie, president and general manager, said.

Damage included fire-weakened rafters, a hole cut in the roof to vent the fire, ceiling charring and water on metal parts.

Three companies of firemen spent about 1 1/2 hours at the fire.

Equivalent Of Diploma to Be Available

Deficiency Can Be Made Up Under
New Program

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — If your high school training was interrupted and you feel the lack of that diploma there is a chance to make up the deficiency under special procedures authorized under a new state law.

Under a 1959 act of the state legislature, State Superintendent George Watson has written an order covering the requirements for a state certificate on the equivalency of high school graduates when it is not possible for local high schools to do so for deserving candidates.

Candidates for such certificates must be legal residents of the state, and must be at least 20 years of age.

They must be able to show that they have at least six of the usually required 16 high school credits.

The remaining high school work can be claimed through completion of correspondence courses on the high school level, work in any other school approved by the state superintendent, or armed services training, except that credit for basic or recruit training won't be granted.

Words often misused: Do not say, "thrifty persons take care of their shoes, and leather is saved." There is a confusing shift from the active to the passive voice in this sentence. It is better to say, "Thrifty persons take care of their shoes and save leather."

Often mispronounced: Chorus and chortle. The "ch"

'Twas Paddy O'Shay Who First Was Shot Into Orbit

BY TERRY McHALE
Post-Crescent News Service

The old Irishman shifted himself into a more comfortable position in his easy chair. He packed his pipe with practiced fingers and lit it with an ember from the hearth. He then addressed himself to the youth sitting by his side.

"So, me lad," he said through a cloud of smoke, "your tether wants you to make a report on the men who are going to be the first to circle the earth on a missile, does she? Shure, and Oi'll give ye the real lowdown in exchange for a wee favor. Bring me the salve for me blistered fingers is all Oi ask Oi should know better than to pick up a glowin' ember with me bare hands."

The boy leaped with alacrity to do his grandfather's bidding. The errand completed, the boy settled himself down once more again in his chair with Alacrity, his nondescript dog, sprawled at his feet.

"So ye want to know of men and missiles, do ye? Well, we've come to the proper source for the information, for Oi am the man who touched off the fuse which sent the first man into orbit.

"And don't look at me with them sparklin' blue, enbela ving eyes, naither. For before Oi'm done, ye'll have proof aplenty of the tale Oi'm about to unfold."

And this is the story the old Irishman told:

'Twas many years ago, me lad, that this all took place, when Oi was not 10 years older than ye are now. Niver since a sight, have Oi seen since Paddy O'Shay blasted off that airvin' on his trip around the world. But Oi'm gettin' ahead of me shtory.

There was Paddy, Tim O'Rourke, Danny O'Sullivan and me present on this historic occasion which, Oi must confess, was the result of a bit of an accident on my part. We wuss gathered to-gither in Tim's barn in County Cavan, makin' preparations for a little party in honor of Paddy's approachin' marriage, when this miracle of the age came about.

The old pot still was bubblin' merrily, an da cheerful crew were we as we went about our work. The huge keg we wuz fillin' with foin' borth of barley was far from empty, and soon would take no more.

Treats Grew Dry

We whistled and sang merrily, for Paddy was a foin' boy, well liked by all, and 'twould be a real sendoff we would give him into the state of matrimony. But 'twas not as we expected.

Shure and son the keg was full, and we sealed it up to age, for the party was a full week away. Then we sat about as the embers died under the still and began to talk of the fun we'd had together, as men often do when one of their number is about to leave the group.

And as we talked and sang, our throats grew curiously dry. Foinly, Danny made a suggestion.

"Paddy is one of the best of men," Paddy began, "and 'tis the world's best bachelor party we plan to give him. Now 'twould be a terrible, terrible shame if our barley broth was not up to the most rigid standards. Oi'm a thinkin' that to be on the safe side, we should sample of it now."

Sipped Again, Again

After thinkin' this weighty matter over for a lingers' three-tenths of a second, we all agreed. Cups appeared as if from the leprechauns, the spigot was turned and the sweet nectar drained into them.

Ye're aware, of course, that to do a good job of samplin', a mere taste is not enough. And so we sipped again and again, each time agreein' that no better brew had ever been brewed than that which we were brewin'.

Oi was in charge of fillin' the cups, and somehow Oi forgot to close the spigot tight and a wee trickle began leakin' out unbenoticed. By this time Paddy was seated atop the keg, directin' our foin' quartet in a song and a glorious sound it was until—

Flash of Fire

The wee trickle ran along the hard dirt floor of the barn until it reached the lowest point, which happened to be the exact spot on which proudly stood our wonderful pot still. The little rivulet reached the nearly dead embers.

Flash! Crash! Roar! Whoosh!

It all happened so fast that Oi'm still vague on the details. But Oi do remember a terrible flash of fire and suddenly the barn was gone, and we could see an awesome mushroom cloud silhouetted against the full moon.

The barrel—and Paddy—wuz gone.

No Sign of Him

The two other survivors and Oi rushed outside, lookin' for Paddy, but to no avail. Not a sign of him did we find.

Oi looked to the sky, with tears in me oyes and Oi thought Oi saw something there which Oi'd niver seen before. 'Twas far off and movin' away to the west at a rapid pace. It was red, and seemed to have a burnin' tail. But so concerned was Oi that Oi thought nothin' of it at the time.

The three of us sat down to try to decide what to do. Poor Paddy was blown to kingdom come, we knew, and one of us would have to break the news to Bridget, Paddy's betrothed. No easy job would it be to explain the accident to Bridget. A foin' broth av a lass she was, but opposed to liquid refreshments, which would make Paddy's fate all the worse in her oyes. 'Twas decided to draw straws to see who the unfortunate one would be.

Skithered for Cover

Danny is sholdin' av the straws and when my turn came Oi glanced to the heavens for guidance. Again Oi saw in the sky the same thing Oi had earlier, but this time it was in the east and approachin' with great speed, comin' right at us.

"Look out, boys!" Oi shouted and we all skithered for cover.

There was a crash and a sputter as the thing hit the earth near me, and something landed right on top of me.

It was Paddy O'Shay, out of breath but alive and well.

Tells of Travels

Once he had recovered himself, Paddy told us of his travels aboard the keg. He set out due west, he told us, spanned the Atlantic, crossed over America, narrowly missing crashing into Pike's Peak, roared across the broad Pacific, Asia and Europe, losing speed as he went. He just barely managed to reach home by flappin' his arms, he said.

We all agreed that the less said about this remarkable flight the better, because of Bridget's firm opinions on strong drink, and I was not

'til now that any but four of us knew than an Irishman was the first to rocket around the earth.

The old Irishman glanced down at the youth.

"So you think ye're grandfather is spinnin' tales, do ye? Shure, 'tis a simple matter to prove. Just ask your teacher about the great phenomenon that was reported in 1910. Why, them astronomers wusn't able to tell the difference between Halley's comet and a flamin' keg of Irish whiskey!"

Bound Over At Hearing

Youth Must Face Negligent Homicide Charge

Chilton — Eugene Boehnlein, 20, route 1, Hilbert, has been bound over to circuit court by Justice Leo Kartheiser on charges of negligent homicide.

Kartheiser made the decision Wednesday after hearing testimony against Boehnlein at a preliminary hearing. Testifying were Calumet county Patrolmen Victor Juno and Donald Kossman who investigated the June 22 accident in which two passengers in a car driven by Boehnlein were killed.

The case probably will be added to the criminal calendar of the March term of Calumet county circuit court. Court convenes Monday.

Stolen Car Recovered Within Hour After Reported Missing

Chilton — A stolen car was recovered by Calumet county police within an hour after it was reported missing, according to Sheriff C. J. Kosmosky.

Orville Briling, Askeaton, reported Wednesday morning that his 1955 model Plymouth was taken from the Reuben Laack's cheese factory lot sometime during the night. The keys were left in the car, he said.

The car was found abandoned at the intersection of County Trunk E and the Irish road in the town of Rantoul. It was not damaged.

Charlie Gives 2-Cents Worth of Advice From Old Cure-All Book

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

If one can believe the printed word, today's column should be worth its weight in gold which, obviously, is not very much.

However, a friend who is not against loaning his books loaned to me a minor treasure titled "Six Hundred Receipts," which means to imply "recipes." An additive to the title is "Worth their weight in Gold."

As gentle reader knows, it is the burning wish of this department to serve mankind, and if mankind is not to be served then I must try to find a substitute for that service—say, this column's weight in gold. You're welcome.

Most of the 600 "receipts" found in the 70-year-old book will not be recorded herein because they are instructive in such arts as gin, Monogahela whiskey, Scotch whiskey, apple whiskey, wheat whiskey, Jamaica rum, brandy, wines, and other things which this column does not wish to impart to an already tipsy world.

One receipt which I am willing to disclose is the one lard from an old hog in the same quantity, mix it well and spread it on white leather and apply it."

Cure for Colds

The all-wise gentleman of yore has "a certain cure" for colds, too, and I am sorry that I was ignorant of it all these years.

His cure requires one teaspoon of flax seed, one ounce of licorice and one-quarter pound of raisins. It must be boiled to one-half that bulk in a slow fire, and then to it must be added one-quarter pound of rock for the making of Venice Turpentine.

The recipe reads: "Take one quart of spirits of turpentine, 1/2 pound of rosin (resin?). Dissolve over a gentle heat. When cool it will be fit for use." (The recipe does not say what it is fit for, but we may all have our suspicions.)

The book was compiled and written by one John Marquart of Lebanon, Pa., and it was published in 1890 by the Keystone Publishing company which is no longer among us, and who would wonder why?

Dog-Bite Cure

A cure for dog-bite, for example, is to keep away from dogs, but the book has a recipe, thus:

"Take one ounce of red chicken - weed (gathered and dried in the shade during the month of June), and put it into one quart of strong beer, and boil it down to one pint. Strain the tea (!) through a clean linen cloth, then stir into the tea one ounce of theriac so that it will be well mixed. The theriac is not to be boiled."

Mr. Marquart suggests that the mixture be taken in doses of (if the man has, he adds, "a strong constitution") one pint in the morning, "sober," and the remainder the next morning, "also sober." Three doses will be sufficient for a cure, says Mr. Marquart, but he urges the dog-bitten fellow not to get angry and not to overheat himself for two weeks.

Treatment for Corns

No dilly-dally conjecturer was Mr. Marquart. When he had a cure he told you so. For corns, his recipe is this:

"Take nightshade berries and boil them in hog's lard and anoint the corn with the resultant salve." And then his last line on that recipe is the bold: "It will not fail to cure."

I hope and trust that gentle reader is not afflicted with a scabby head, but if one is unfortunately so stricken, the Marquart recipe is available: "Take one pound of pickled pork and one pound of cabbage. Boil the same as if for eating, then skim it off and wash the head with the liquid."

Useless Today

The book contains "a never-failing" recipe for anyone suffering from "the tetter, the ringworm, the swinney or rheumatism" but I hesitate to print the recipe here because, among other things, it requires that three fresh eggs must be whipped with a pine-wood shovel and they are so hard to get that the recipe is useless today.

A cure for "giddiness" requires two ounces of Epsom salts, one ounce of senna and one pint of wine. (I would be tempted to omit the wine for a more certain cure, and also the Epsom salts and the senna.)

The author has a recipe for shoe blacking which might be good and which might also attract every bear in the neighborhood, but here it is:

Show Blacking

Take eight pounds of ivory-black, one pint of fish oil, and two pounds of vitriol. It should be mixed and boiled and then placed into boxes for later use while it is still warm.

Mr. Marquart suggests, for reviving a person "who seems almost dead from a heavy fall," so simple a remedy as the mixing of one teaspoon of salt to a pint of cold water. It should be drunk.

Marquart's cure for cancer is nicely handled in three simple lines, thus: "Take bread dough the size of an egg, the candy pounded fine. To cure the cold? Drink one-half pint on going to bed. It's that simple.

SILVER SPRING HORSE RADISH

Good as well!

Hair Oil Mixtures

He provides a fine recipe for hair oil—Mix one ounce of brandy with three ounces of sweet oil. Voila: The girls will chase you, Charlie!

Another excellent hair oil, according to our authority, is made with fresh hog's lard and perfumed oil, and boil it and you will find, he suggests, that it is an excellent imitation of hair oil made from the marrow from the bones of a dead ox.

The wisdom in today's column, as you can see, is like the advice of Mr. Marquart—worth its weight in gold; a little less than two cents.

Erin Go Bragh, Dear Brownies and Leprechauns Shure and Be Gorra 'Tis St. Patrick's Day! Kissing Blarney Stone Brings Luck

BY KATHLEEN REARDON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Happy St. Patrick's day, one and all. You don't have to be a Kelly, Kavanaugh or O'Donnell to celebrate the wearing of the green. We accept even Schulzes, Browns and Muellers, as long as they don't scoff at our green attire and sport orange ties.

Do you believe in Leprechauns, brownies, elves and grass sprites? You should, because they really exist and a wee person may be tugging at your sleeve right now, looking for the warmth of your smile.

If you are a MacDonald or a McCarthy, you've seen one no doubt and maybe one even came here from Ireland with one of your ancestors.

When St. Patrick landed many years ago, the Irish fairies were gay and merry, probably because Ireland was such a warm and verdant place.

Kiss Lucky Stone

However, if you don't believe in these wee folk, don't despair, you can still join in the spirit of St. Patrick's day. You certainly believe that kissing the blarney stone brings luck, be gorra!

The famous saint whose day marks an occasion for festivity, so the story goes, was born about 390. He was carried off from Rome by pirates at the age of 16 and sold as a slave in Ireland. While tending herd for six years, he learned to meditate and pray and escaped from Ireland and returned to Rome. In a dream he was told to return to Ireland and Christianize it. Thus, he studied in France, became a priest and was consecrated a bishop by Pope Celestine I.

Despite the Druid hostility, he preached and spread the faith throughout the isle and founded monasteries and schools. He died in 491 and Ireland became known as the Isle of the Saints.

While Appleton is not the most Irish community, even though there are 14 Kellys, 15 McCarthys and nine Hurleys in the telephone book, many Irishmen for the day will make the Fox Cities a small green isle, surrounded by the Irish sea, not Lake Winnebago and the Fox river, Indian names notwithstanding.

Join Festivities

While Appletonians do not paint the white road dividers green, as is done in New York, or have city-wide parades with the town officials donning top hats and tails, there are many private spots in the city which do cater to all Irishmen, whether real or not real.

For instance, when, except on St. Patrick's day, can you find colored beer? A few drops of food coloring can change the entire atmosphere. Also the lunchroom counters will be serving green sundaes and sodas, green cakes and even mint pies. Variety stores have been doing a land office business these last few weeks in green ties, shamrocks, clay pipes and hats.

"My Wild Irish Rose," and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" will be resounding along with all the Irish jigs so popular this 17th day of March.

So, Erin go bragh and all that, come be an Irishman for one day—you still have time.

Former Lawrentian Heads Welfare Unit

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

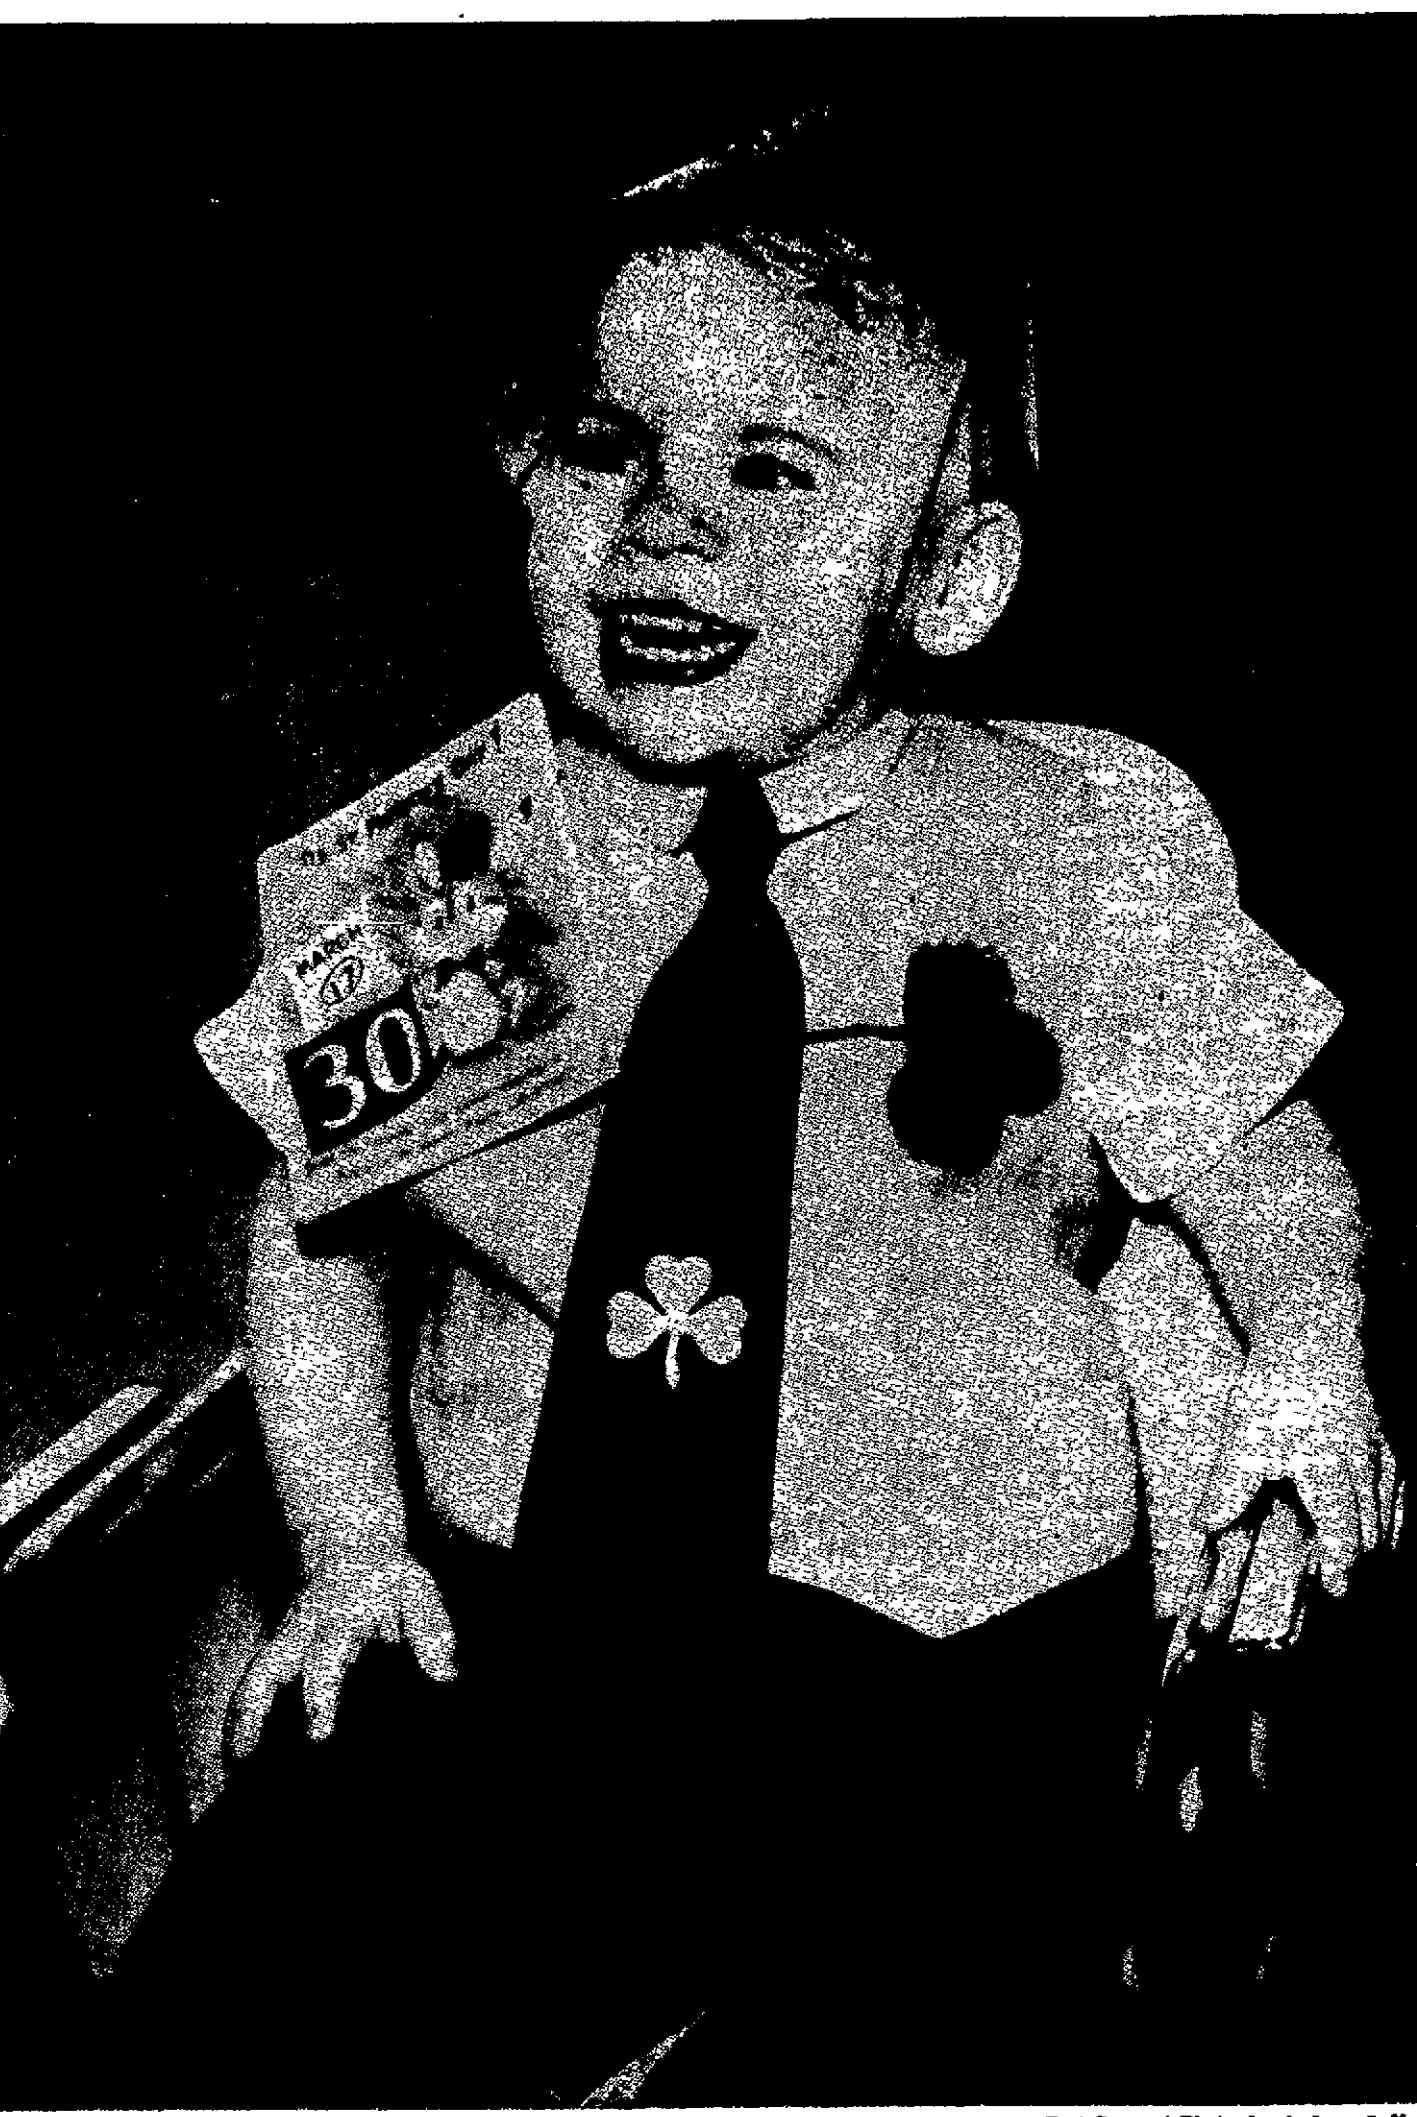

Madison — A woman who has spent more than 30 years in counselling troubled young people and now heads the child welfare division of Wisconsin. Miss Dorothy Waite, former Lawrence student, is convinced that the problem of juvenile delinquency is often magnified beyond its true dimensions.

"We often forget that 98 percent of our children are getting along well and keeping out of trouble," said Miss Waite. She was recently named chief of the division of children and youth of the state department of public welfare.

Neglect Cause

In their heightened awareness of the problem of juvenile delinquency today, Miss Waite continued, people often fail to understand that youthful waywardness is likely to result from emotional disturbances and neglect.

"The great need is to detect these difficulties early and to have community resources to handle them when they are found. We are making good progress and our co-

Brian Hurley, Son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hurley, 212 S. Spruce street, with Irish eyes a-smilin', wears a spot of green today in honor of St. Patrick's day.

Incidentally, Brian shares this month with the famous saint, as he will be 2 on March 30.

In Good Taste Girl Told To Explain Situation

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: The invitations to my wedding have already been sent out. I had planned on having about 75 Irishmen for the day will make the Fox Cities a small green isle, surrounded by the Irish sea, not Lake Winnebago and the Fox river, Indian names notwithstanding.

Practical Idea

Dear Mrs. Post: I am giving a shower for a friend of mine in the near future. It is to be a miscellaneous shower. I would like to know if it would be proper to list at the bottom of the shower invitations the color scheme of the bride-to-be's future house, such as Kitchen: Yellow, Bathroom: Blue, etc. It seems to me that all too many brides receive gifts in colors that clash with their color schemes. I would like to know what you think of this idea.

Answer: I think your suggestion is very practical and would be entirely proper.

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Post: When a middle-aged woman is seated at a party and other women guests arrive who are strangers to her and they are brought over and introduced to her, is it necessary that she rise from her chair to acknowledge these introductions?

Answer: She need rise only if the women being introduced are much older than she is.

Mrs. Post offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning etiquette. If you would like to have her booklet, No. 504, entitled, "Etiquette of Table Settings," send 10 cents in coin to Dept. E.P., care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N.Y.

Let's Have a Party For the Young 'uns

BY LILLIAN MACKESY

Post-Crescent Food Editor

How young fry love a party... especially when it's at "my house"... but a word of warning... don't give a party on grown-up terms... suit the interests and the age of the youngsters... it will be a success every time.

Parties can be given all through the year as special days from today's St. Patrick's day through Christmas appear... an imaginative mom or grandma can whip up a festive occasion for the first day of spring... Easter or Candlemas day when Mr. Groundhog comes out of hibernation to shadow box with the sun... birthdays are fun to celebrate, to be sure, but with informal parties throughout the year a youngster soon learns that this is a way to see his or her friends and just plain enjoy their company rather than a way to get presents.

For the very young... and even the intermediates... it's best to ask several mothers to stay for the morning or afternoon. They can both participate and help.

First, invite only congenial friends of the young child, keeping the number small. Some follow the rules of as many as the age of the child. Set a time that keeps away from naps and includes luncheon or early supper hour.

It's wise to plan refreshments that serve as lunch or supper so schedules won't be upset. Food that's simple but treated with imagination or a bit of fantasy can make any party a memorable occasion for the kindergarten or primary grade set.

Here's a for instance... an idea for a coming-of-spring or Easter party... a personal Peter Cottontail dessert table favor for each of the guests.

Each Mr. Cottontail is easily made from store-bought cookies and marshmallows, put together with toothpicks. The perky animal has marshmallow feet and tail, sugar wafer ears all affixed to head and body made from the kind of round cookies that have a soft, marshmallow topping. Chocolate bits pressed into the soft marshmallow topping of the cookie head creates the illusion of the animal's face.

Tips for party planners include pre-vent thoughts on activities as well as food. Successful parties... even simple ones... don't just happen. They are planned. Brief the helping mothers on the agenda. Do all your food preparation ahead of time so you won't have to be in the kitchen more than a few minutes at a time during the party.

For the youngest children, keep something going all the time. Ideas include simple circle games... a box of old clothes for dress-up time... records and stories also make this age child happy.

By the time a child is 7 or 8, he's more interested in games that take imagination and competition. These youngsters like to win prizes and be able to take home party loot.

For any aged youngster, be sure that each has a favor to take home as a remembrance.

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1 of white bread and six slices of brown bread. Spread softened butter on three slices of brown bread and three slices of white.

Cut out centers of remaining slices with small animal cutters. Take care to duplicate same animal shape in matching brown and white slices of bread. Put animal cut-outs to one side for later insertion.

Sandwich Cut-Ups
Using a decorating tube, cover every other rectangle with yellow frosting. Write letters of alphabet on rectangles, using yellow frosting on chocolate squares and chocolate frosting on yellow squares.

Trim crusts from six slices of white bread. Place slice of cut-out white bread on top of slice of buttered brown bread and vice versa. Insert brown animal cut-outs in matching white bread and white animal figures in matching brown bread. It works like a jigsaw puzzle if duplicate animal figures were cut-out of both white and brown bread sandwich tops.

Peanut butter may be used as sandwich spread instead of butter.

Wrap sandwiches in foil and refrigerate until ready to use.

Lollipop Cookies
1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1 cup brown sugar, plus 2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
1 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats

1 1/2 to 2 dozen long flat wooden spoons
Sift together flour, baking soda and salt. Cream butter with brown sugar and vanilla. Beat egg thoroughly into butter mixture. Mix in dry ingredients, blending thoroughly. Stir chocolate, nuts and rolled oats into mixture. Place prepared wooden spoons about four inches apart on buttered cookie sheet. Drop cookie mixture by tablespoonfuls onto bowls of wooden spoons, then flatten slightly. Bake in 375-degree oven 10 to 15 minutes. Remove cookies attached to wooden spoons gently with wide spatula while cookies are still warm. Cool on rack.

These cookies stay crisp if stored in tightly covered container and so may be baked ahead.

To Prepare Spoons
Tint water with red, yellow, green or blue food coloring. Place handles of wooden spoons in water. Allow to stand until colored. Drain and dry.

Music Fraternity Initiates Members

Pi Kappa Lambda music fraternity at Lawrence college was cheated out of its gala tenth anniversary celebration by a snow storm.

In fact, members of the fraternity felt a little like wedding guests left sitting in the church when the bride doesn't show up.

Months ago Alpha Theta chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda had arranged to initiate pianist Eugene Istomin as an honorary member the day before the internationally famed young artist was to appear on the Lawrence community artist series.

Istomin expressed delight at the honor and assured President James Ming that he would be in Appleton on Wednesday for the noon ceremony and luncheon. Then the snow came, and Istomin languished in a hotel room in Chicago awaiting transportation north.

The initiation went on as scheduled for the four other new members of the society. According to the last exchange of telephone calls, the pianist hopes to arrive in Appleton sometime before this evening's concert, either by train or air. He will become an honorary member in a quiet little ceremony in the corner of somebody's studio in the Music-Drama center.

Will Read Citation
A citation will be read by Clyde Duncan, head of the Lawrence piano department, at that time.

In addition to Istomin, the first honorary member taken in by the Lawrence chapter in its ten years of existence, three undergraduates and one faculty member were added to the rolls: Edith Miller, Rock Island, Ill.; Kay Mueller, Mayville; and Ronald Sindelar, Manitowish.

Sheinwold Lost Trick Saves Game For Experts

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
Players in the national tournament now in progress in Jackson, Miss., fight hard for every possible trick. Despite this, the expert must know when to surrender a trick he could have won.

When this hand was played in a tournament recently, West opened the king of clubs, continued with the ace of clubs and then went on with the jack of clubs.

East discarded a heart, and South ruffed.

The thoughtless declarer drew four rounds of trumps and eventually gave up two diamond tricks. Down one.

Pause for Thought
A pause for thought saved the experts from defeat. They took only one round of trumps, and then did some thinking about the concealed hands.

It was clear that West had started with five clubs. Since West had opened the bidding with one diamond, there was good reason to believe that West had two five-card suits. This meant that East had only one diamond. East was known to have four trumps and only two clubs. The rest of his hand was a 6-card heart suit of some kind.

3 Rounds Trump
This was enough information to guarantee the contract. Each expert who held the South cards drew just three rounds of trumps and then led out the ace and king of diamonds.

East didn't want to ruff the king of diamonds, but South then led a low trump to force East into the lead. This gave up a trump trick that South didn't have to lose. South wasn't being generous. East got one trick but had to give up two. East had to return a heart up to dummy's ace-queen, and this gave South a chance to get rid of his two low diamonds.

Mother's Helper

MAKING a dress with puffed sleeves? If you leave an opening at the underarm seam, you can solve a future ironing problem. Sew a hook and eye on the ends of a piece of narrow elastic ribbon, run the elastic through and hook it at the opening. When you're ready to wash the dress, remove the elastic and the sleeves can be ironed flat.

Mother's Anxiety May Injure Children's Feet

The hand that lights the first birthday candle may seriously harm an infant's feet months before the memorable day comes, according to a prominent podiatrist.
Most parents watch and wait for baby's first steps with eager anticipation, said Dr. Benjamin Kauth, director of the American Foot Care institute. "But woe to the family of a slow walker. Mother is openly worried, father is quietly concerned, and grandma is plain frantic."
In these circumstances, the New York foot specialist pointed out, "it is the wise mother who, despite all temptation, lets her child take his own good time about standing or walking." To avoid a mistake which may pave the way to misshapen feet and a lifetime of foot complaints, Dr. Kauth offers the following advice to mothers of infants and young children:

Ignore Outside Aids
Don't use outside aids like "baby walkers" to force him onto his feet. Until he pulls himself up on a chair leg or the side of a play pen, the 52 bones of his two feet are too soft to support his weight.
Once he stands, he's ready for his first pair of shoes. Shoes protect his feet, give him a stable standing base, and encourage him to walk. "To help the toddler explore the world in health and safety," his first shoes should be as carefully constructed and fitted as any he will ever wear.
Choose shoes that are made entirely of soft, supple leather with a semi-soft leather sole. As he grows older, the sole should be of somewhat stiffer, though still flexible leather for protection on bruising pavements as well as against rusty nails, sharp sticks and stones.

Because of leather's "breathing" action, the inside of an all-leather shoe is always dry, comfortable and healthy. Baby's skin is tender at this age, and irritations due to perspiration are hard to clear up. Look out for shoes that are only part leather and part plastic. The plastic interferes with evaporation of perspiration, keeping baby's feet hot, moist and irritated.
Needs Toe Room
Look for full-cut uppers and ample toe room. One good rule to follow in buying infants' and children's shoes is to get them three-quarters of an inch longer than the longest toe and one-quarter of an inch wider than the broadest part of his foot.
Until the age of two, keep him in high shoes that he cannot kick off. After that, buy him oxfords. Low cut leather uppers and leather soles give adequate support and gentle control.
Don't be concerned if he toes-out when he begins to walk. Some children toe-out moderately, others rival Charlie Chaplin, but most begin to toe-in gradually until they walk straight, or nearly so.
If your child toes-in too far, consult a podiatrist. Corrective treatment may be required. A visit to the family podiatrist may also be advisable if he drags one foot, falls more often than other children of his age, seems to be knock-kneed or have bowed legs.

Our Children

Hard for Youngsters To Explain Emotions

BY ANGELO PATRI

Many times a mother asks one of the children: "What's the matter?"
The small one, is fretful, nothing suits him. He will toss each toy offered him back at the person who is trying to please him. To his mother's anxious question he increases the volume of his crying but offers no explanation.

There are many reasons that may be at work but the child has no words to express them. He is uneasy but can't say where or why. He may be unhappy because his routine has been broken; maybe he is lonely because his playmate, a brother or sister, is not around; maybe he is growing fast.

Time usually answers the question but that does not help the mother with the fretting child. She can't even explain to him why he feels this way when she knows.

Communication Lack

This state of affairs, this lack of communication between children and the adults who are concerned with them and about them, lasts indefinitely. Gradually, the ability to communicate on what I term external matters like hurts gained at play, a headache, the need or the wish for something for pleasure or comfort, is usually in service by the age of 8 and increases on to post adolescence.

But the ability to communicate emotions, personal troubles that cause deep emotions, feelings about people and family customs, these are so tied up, so complicated with the emotions of the other members of the family that there is little open communication between adolescents and their parents.

It is at this state of development that the adolescent boy and girl seek confidants of their own age to whom they can pour out their secret thoughts and feelings. The young people who have such trusted friends are fortunate. They are not likely to become patients for the psychoanalyst.

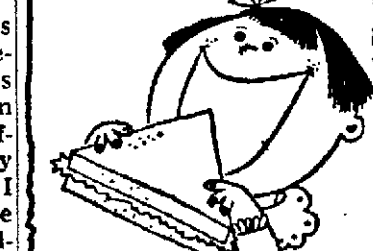

Sometimes these young people confide in a teacher, a scout master, a family friend or neighbor. No parent should question this. It is not a reflection on a father or mother but a reflection of a real need in their child which they, at present, cannot fill and the outsider can. In time the child returns to his parents, the crisis over.

Think things over when a child, of any age, is uneasy, unlike himself, and don't expect him to be able to tell you what troubles him unless it is a physical hurt. He will tell you that without any pressure. Don't press, however, for his personal secrets. He is entitled to them, and to privacy concerning them.

How to Suspend Hanging Lamp in Right Place

Decide where a hanging lamp would be most useful and attractive—and hang it there. Never mind the wrong ceiling location of the source of electricity. The lamp may be even more decoration for the room if the chain that suspends it must be re-routed. Here the chain swags smartly from one point of attachment to the ceiling to another.

Small brass plates to match secure the chain through rings, and there's no reason at all that they can't attach to any firm ceiling at any spot where they're needed. Youngster With Mother, Dog Problem Seeks Ann's Advice

BY ANN LANDERS
 DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am Jackie. Please don't throw this away. I am 11 years old.
 I have a dog. He is a very good dog. My mother won't let my dog in the house until she is ready to go to bed. Sometimes it is almost 11 p.m.

Landers

It has been very cold here lately. The dog cries out in the yard until it breaks my heart. If Mom would take pity on him and let him in to warm up, I would help. You are her size so maybe she will listen to you. Thank you.
 —Jackie from R.

Dear Jackie: Most dogs cry in the yard because they are lonesome, not because they are cold. Nature provides outdoor animals with fur coats. Since Mom does let the dog in to sleep ask her if she'll please let him in a couple of hours early on winter nights. I'm hoping she'll say yes.

DEAR ANN: I'm a divorcee who needs some practical advice. A few weeks ago I got an excellent job in a large office. People have been very friendly, especially a woman who works in this department.

She fixed me up with her unmarried brother two weeks ago and he's called me for three dates since. We seemed to click from the start, but there's one fly in the ointment. The man is grand company but on the first date I discovered he drinks like a fish.

Frankly, I'm afraid to ride with him at the end of the evening. He swears he's never had an accident. If true, it's a miracle. Would it be rude to insist he take me home in a taxi?—Nervous

Dear Nervous: If this guy drinks like a fish tell him you'd be happy to swim with him, but you won't ride with him.

It's not rude, it's sensible to refuse a ride with a man who is intoxicated. In fact, you'd be performing a public service to insist that he travel by taxi after he's had a snoot full.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have two sons who are as different as night and day. The older boy, Hank, is 16, a leader in school activities and sports, loves people and is very popular. He always has a gang of kids over and seems to be getting a lot of fun out of life.

His brother Paul will be 15 in May. He's shy, introverted and the lone wolf type. He has a couple of friends who are also quiet and studious, but he hardly ever gets a phone call.

Paul is interested in poetry, science and math. His grades are tops and he has won several academic honors.

I'm worried about him because all he wants to do is read, haunt libraries and art galleries or museums. It seems unnatural for a boy his age to be so ingrown. The contrast between Paul and Hank is so great it concerns me deeply. What do you suggest?—Mother of Sons

Dear Mother: Your sons have different personalities and interests. Respect their individuality. There's no reason for them to be carbon copies of one another.

I see no cause to worry about a boy who makes top grades, likes art galleries, libraries and museums. Not all kids have magnetic personalities that draw crowds—and maybe that's good.

Parents who want their children to be popular are usually trying to relive their own lonely childhood. Leave Paul alone. He may be happier than gregarious, out-going Hank.

Does almost everyone have a good time but you? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Be Well-Liked," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Tale of a Small Yard

BY CHARLES M. CROWE

"I have learned, in whatever state I am, therewith to be content."

—Phillipians 4:11

Leonard Dubkin wrote a book of nature study about his tiny apartment house yard.

A more unlikely place for nature study could hardly be found. Yet in a single square foot of this "bluegrass wilder-everywhere. And because he has crowded our world with materials for growth and beauty. It isn't another job or another home, or more time or money, or a larger yard that we need. It is the insight to look for God and goodness and for divine horizons of love and service just outside our door.

Read: Phillipians 4:10-20.

PRAYER: Eternal God, in our impatient search for far away contentment grant us the wisdom and faith to find it within our own hearts. Amen.

Neighborhood Women Become Census Takers

BY DOROTHY ROE
Can a women keep a secret?
The United States government will soon find out. Some 136,000 women start out April 1 in every city, town and crossroads to compile highly personal information about their neighbors for the 1960 census.
This year Uncle Sam is depending largely on housewives to count the noses of Americans for him, since not many men are available for the job. The Bureau of the Census in Washington estimates that 85 per cent of the 160,000 takers of the 1960 census will be women, compared with 65 per cent in 1950. The reason: higher employment and higher wages. A 2-week job at an average of $13 a day doesn't have as many takers as it did 10 years ago.

Women Census-Takers
However, the situation is well in hand, according to latest reports from census headquarters in Washington. A desperate appeal for women census takers two weeks ago has brought results and the current word is that women have responded nobly to the call, even in New York City, where the shortage was greatest.

Census takers will work largely in their own neighborhoods, for purposes of convenience and efficiency. It has been found desirable, says the census bureau, to have census takers stick to their own areas as much as possible, not only to save travel time but also because a resident of the Bowery might have tough sledding ringing doorbells on Park avenue, and vice versa.

According to the current

Forever Feminine

Fred, you're not going to call the police with the house looking like this?!

streamlined plan, questionnaires will be mailed to all residents of the United States late in March, and a few days later census takers will call to pick up the answers, and check them.

Questions are Personal
This is the rub. The new census questions go into details which Mrs. Jones may not want her neighbors to know — questions about age, income, number of marriages and so on. One in four homes will receive detailed questionnaires containing 45 questions designed to give the government a living portrait of every American — how many days off you or your husband had last year, how you or he travels to work, how many bedrooms in your home, so on. These detailed questionnaires are mailed direct to the regional census office, in a postage-paid envelope enclosed.

But the regular census say.

State College Enrollment High

Madison —(AP)— The board of state college regents said Wednesday mid-year enrollment at Wisconsin's nine state colleges reached an all-time spring semester high of 13,453. Oshkosh leads the group with 1,887 students.

The figure for all schools reflected a drop-off of 885 students from last fall's enrollment totals, a normal decrease.

Other enrollments reported were Eau Claire, 1,613; La Crosse, 1,668; Patteville, 1,527; River Falls, 1,235; Stevens Point, 1,502; Stout, 1,247; Superior, 1,203, and Whitewater, 1,561.

Ribbon-Covered Sashcord Made Into Sewing Basket

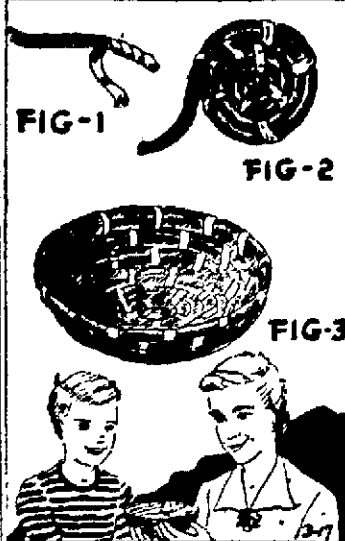

BY CAPPY DICK

The sewing basket which is today's fun-project is intended as a gift for mother. It's made from a length of window wash cord or clothesline and some ribbon used on gift packages.

Six or seven feet of clothesline or sash cord will be needed to make a basket of sufficient size. It must be in one piece. Sash cord will be better to use than clothesline because it is stiffer.

As the rope is coiled to form the basket (see Figures 1 and 2) it is to be wrapped with ribbon. This may be metallic ribbon or colored plastic ribbon, although the former will be better to work with because it can be pasted easily to the rope as you do the winding. Various colors of ribbon may be combined.

Start the project by threading the ribbon into a large darning needle or a bobby pin. Apply a bit of paste to the end of the rope and wrap it with ribbon a distance of about two inches. Roll the covered rope into a tight coil, leaving no hole in the center. Pass the needle or bobby pin down through the center of this coil and bring the ribbon back around the rope, holding the

Continue applying paste to the rope, winding it with ribbon and coiling it. Each inch or two take a new stitch into the row just ahead of the one you are wrapping, locking the coils tightly together. If you have several colors of ribbon, use a different color each two or three turns of rope.

When you have formed a coil large enough for the bottom of the sewing basket start around the rope, holding the building the sides by putting

Rep. Byrnes Requests Stamp Made Honoring Pianist Paderewski

Washington—Rep. John Byrnes (R-Wis.) asked the post office department Wednesday to include a stamp honoring the Polish pianist and statesman, Ignace Paderewski, in its champions of liberty stamp series.

Byrnes said Paderewski's unselfish dedication to the cause of a free and independent Poland and his untiring devotion "in the preservation of human rights" merit him a place of honor.

Paderewski died in 1941 at the age of 81. He was a famous pianist and composer and Poland's premier in 1919.

2 a.m. Closing Passes First Council Hurdle

Appleton aldermen Wednesday night ordered publishing the 2 a.m. tavern closing ordinance by a 2-vote margin. Originally, the move to allow later tavern hours during daylight saving time passed the council by a single vote March 2.

The ordinance is in two sections—one covering liquor licenses, the other beer permits—and Ald. Kenneth Priebe asked for a vote on both. "I want to go on record as opposing this," he commented.

Joining him in opposing the later closing for taverns with liquor licenses were Ald. Bogan, Captain, Hannemann, Stoegbauer, Tews, Tucker and Wagner. Captain asked after the vote was announced to change his stand, but Mayor Mitchell told him it was impossible.

Joining Priebe in opposing later closing for businesses with beer permits were Ald. Hannemann, Schumacher, Stoegbauer, Tews and Wagner.

If either section had been voted down, the 2 a.m. closing would have lost.

Israel Modern, Practical State

Majority Feel Mixing Politics, Religion Leads to Complications

BY WILLIAM S. WHITE

Jerusalem — Israel is far more a thoroughly practical and nationalistic modern state than it is a dusty Biblical land or even a stronghold of the Jewish religion.

This must first be a stout nation, so far as the Israelis are concerned, even before it is a symbol for the hopes of world Jewry. Basically this is an experiment not so much in settlement, however appealing, as in statecraft.

To come here and talk to a people of rare candor—a people who don't mind the most pointed questions and don't shy shilly-shally—is to discover that Israel's role is widely misunderstood in the world at large, especially in the Christian world.

Modern Prophets

This is not simply some set-apart reservation of an ancient and untroubled faith, as many suppose it to be. The true prophets here are not the prophets of the old testament. They are instead the modern prophets of a democratic and secular, or nonreligious, social order based in part on British and American experience.

It is an order largely run by men and women more concerned with this world than with the next. This correspondent is informed, an excellent authority, that perhaps 65 percent of the people of Israel have no religion at all in the formal sense.

This does not mean that Israel is an anti-religious state. A majority of the Israelis simply feel the unwisdom of mixing religion and politics, lest such a course cheapen religion and unnecessarily complicate politics. At the same time, the greatest respect is paid to the exercise of religion among those who wish to exercise it.

Socialists Oppose Communism

A rather doctrinaire socialism which is strong here is the reason that Israel is so reliable a Western ally in the struggle with international communism. Nobody is more aware of the real nature of communism, and more bleakly resolved to defeat it at all cost, than is the bred-in-the-bone socialist. He has forever been Soviet communism's most-bated enemy.

Anybody who might still question the combat quality of these people has only to go out and watch them wrestling implacably with the Negev, the great desert. The hot wind (called sharav) burns and blasts them with endless dust; they put cloths about their mouths and work on, raising homes in the wasteland.

No Christian visitor can expect to grasp the infinite complications in a timeless religion, Judaism, which is also a culture and way of life.

Such a visitor, however, has no trouble in discovering that some of Israel's splinter parties operate more on doctrinal religious differences than on ordinary bread-and-butter questions. The dominant group would like an end to these doctrinal divisions. It would like to change the election laws so as to drive down the number of splinter parties.

Coalitions Necessary

As things stand no single party can possibly obtain a clear parliamentary majority in its own right — not even the relatively powerful party of Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion. Coalitions are thus necessary.

An undoubted majority considers that doctrinal differences within Judaism should be private and not public differences. It has great gratitude for the immense contributions made to this country by world Jewry. It does not, however, wish these contributions to be used for interventions by world Jewry, however well-intended, in the affairs of Israel.

The Israelis simply wish to run Israel in their own way. Israel is first of all a nation and must conduct its affairs in the only way nations really can. This is through practical, realistic political techniques appropriate to the place where they are being applied.

Israel doesn't want the support of its allies because this is the home of the Jews. It wants such support because it has earned its way in the free world alliance. Such a position, where power and determination are actualities rather than promises and hopes, is all too rare within the West.

Review Plan For School Districts

Calumet County Units Dwindle in 10-Year Period

Chilton — A little more than half of Calumet county's area is now part of high school districts, according to F. J. Flanagan, county superintendent of schools. The county school committee, of which he is secretary, met Monday to review school districting in preparation for revision of the county's master plan.

Since the original master plan was drawn up in 1950, the number of school districts in the county has dwindled from 72 to 16. However, Flanagan said, not all of the reduced number were attached to high school districts. Some were combined into the two state graded schools established in the interim.

1-Room Districts

The county has nine 1-room districts, Red Star, Webster, Carston, Hawthorne, Potter, Riverview, Whittier, Twain and Brothertown. The two state graded schools are at Sherwood and Forest Junction.

High school districts include Chilton, Stockbridge, Hilbert, New Holstein and Brill.

Flanagan said each member of the committee was given a copy of the original master plan and a map showing existing districts and the boundaries of high school districts. After study and consideration, the committee will proceed to revise the master plan.

However, he said, immediate action is not planned. Assignment to high school districts, which must be completed, by July 1, 1962, will begin when voters of the unassigned areas begin to express their wishes by petition or other means, he said.

Seminarman Saw Many Schools

Cincinnati — He was born an Indian, went to a Roman Catholic parochial school in Bombay for three years, then to a Protestant school and now is studying to be a reform Jewish rabbi. That's the background of Saul Joel, 18-year-old student at Hebrew Union college — Jewish institute of religion here.

He's the first Indian in the 85-year college history, but Joel says his family religious roots have been fixed in Judaism for 250 years.

He says, "The Christian schools were a very good experience. I had many an interesting discussion on religion with the priests and missionaries who were my teachers."

Participating in a Panel discussion on "Women's Responsibility to Teachers and Teaching" at a meeting of Delta Kappa Gamma sorority are, left to right, Miss Evelyn Van Beek, Neenah; Miss Marie Acker, Menasha; Miss Edythe Sanderman, Menasha; and standing, Miss Mary Willits, Neenah, and Miss Hazel Thatcher, Outagamie county supervising teacher.

Three Drivers Lose Licenses For Speeding

Chilton — Three motorists convicted of speeding Wednesday had their drivers' licenses either suspended or revoked by Justice Leo Kartheiser in addition to paying fines.

Donald L. Joas, 20, of 925 Kamps avenue, Appleton, was fined $10. The points assessed caused him to exceed the maximum allowed and his license was revoked for one year.

Appearing on a waiver from juvenile court was Leonard W. Heimann, 16, route 4, Chilton. He was fined $20 and his license suspended for 60-days after being clocked at 78 mph during the nighttime.

William Horst, 17, of 1730 Reed drive, Appleton, was fined $10 and received a 30-day suspension for nighttime speeding. He also appeared on a juvenile waiver.

Assessed $10 fines were Ralph Diefenthaler, 22, New Holstein, improper muffler; Norman Palubski, 39, Thiensville, passing at an intersection; Loren R. Kietzman, 28, Oshkosh, following too closely; and Vernon Tilkins, 25, Green Bay, nighttime speeding.

Who Knows When City Was Founded?

Tucson, Ariz. — Maria Navarrete Cordova was interested in knowing when the city of Tucson was founded. She said research work produced these results:

Webster's Dictionary lists the date as 1687. The book "Arizona" sets the date at 1690 in one chapter and 1694 in another chapter. The third, biennial report of the Arizona state engineer listed 1698 and a plaque on a Tucson monument says 1776.

Mrs. Cordova asked the city council to settle the issue.

Surgery Recommended for Some Lymphedema Cases

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a condition called lymphedema, but several kinds of treatment have not helped. I still have swollen legs. Recently I have read of an operation for this but I was advised against it. I am anxious for your advice. — N. T." Dr. Molner: This is a rare condition. The swelling is caused by some interference with the drainage of the lymphatic system. John Hopkins university surgeons recently wrote on the subject, pointing out that surgery could be considered if the circumference of the leg increases, if use of the limb is impaired, if there are significant skin changes, or if there are repeated or chronic infections.

Such surgery is a major procedure; the considerations are technical and you must be guided by progressive changes, if any, and your doctor's advice. Surgery should be attempted, obviously, only in cases that give some promise of success.

Doctor Right

"Dear Dr. Molner: Could the extraction of two teeth, with the inevitable swallowing of a little blood, cause the formation of a blood boil under the arm, and after that healed, an anal abscess? My doctor thinks not. — R.S." Your doctor is quite right. The swallowing of a bit of blood is in no way harmful and would have nothing to do with the blood boil. If the extracted teeth were infected (that could have been the reason for removing them) the infection could have been accompanied by a release of germs which localized and caused a boil before the body completed the process of conquering the germs.

No Solid Facts

"Dear Dr. Molner: Are alfalfa pills good for arthritis? A friend of mine claims her fingers became straight and without pain after taking these pills a short time. — D. E." I don't know of any reason to expect such pills to help this. But periodically I am bombarded with claims that somebody knows somebody who had such results. That's as close as I have ever gotten to any solid facts.

If you don't know this friend well enough to observe that such wonderful results occurred, then do this: Ask her to take the pills for the same length of time, an see. I don't know of any reason why alfalfa pills (if they are just alfalfa) should hurt you. Neither have I ever found any reason to think they will help. So — try them, and let me know what results you get, if any.

Teacher Excited About Paris Stay

Time for Shopping, Touring Noted Highlights of Old City, Environs

"How long will we be in middle-aged school teacher. Paris?" She was making plans for her part in the 23-day European tour which will take off from the Fox River valley from the Fox River valley some time on the Champs Elysees?" Asking the questions was a Green Bay Press-Gazette.

In her hand she held a compact informational folder. To receive it she had filled out and mailed one of the handy request coupons like the one published tonight on this page. "I'm especially interested in Paris," she said. It's so full of glamour, and history, and culture.

Neighboring Areas
Not only will the people who accompany Columnist Charlie House see the highlights of Paris, they also will visit some of its historic neighboring areas.

After arriving in the French capital Saturday, July 23, from Nice and the Riviera, the sight-seers will spend two full days there.

Sunday morning there'll be a visit to the Eiffel tower, the Arch of Triumph, Napoleon's tomb, a trip to Trocadero palace, and a ride down the Champs Elysees, the Rue de la Paix and Boulevard Haussmann.

In the afternoon, a motor-coach will whisk them to Notre Dame cathedral, with stops at the Louvre museum, Luxemburg palace and visits to the Pantheon, Sorbonne and the Bastille.

During their Paris stay, visitors also will see the famous Versailles palace and the Bois de Boulogne.

Shoppers' Delight
A shopper's dream awaits the women tourists with time provided for visits to some of the most famous Parisian department stores such as Au Printemps, Galeries Lafayette and the Aux Trois Quartiers.

The curious shouldn't miss the Marche aux Puces (we call it the famed Flea Market), where one finds an abundance of antiques or bric-a-brac. Here it is a custom to haggle over prices.

Good buys in Paris include many of the products for which France is most famous: perfume, gloves, silk scarves, hand-made lingerie, crystal, ceramics, leather goods and other finely crafted articles.

Lack of Interest May Doom Life of Caroline Game Club
Caroline — Bill Gaedke, president of the Caroline Fish and Game club announced today that not enough members attended Tuesday night's meeting to enable them to hold elections as planned.

A meeting has been set for Monday evening and Gaedke stated that if at least 30 or 40 members did not show up there was no use continuing the club.

The Celebrated Eiffel tower is but one of the places Post-Crescent Columnist Charles House and his touring group will visit while in Paris. The 75 travelers will spend two full days in the city and some of their sight-seeing highlights include a visit to Napoleon's tomb, Notre Dame cathedral, the Louvre, Luxemburg palace, the palace at Versailles and the Bois de Boulogne.

AHS Biology Courses are Tailor-Made for Students

Teachers, Books, Equipment
Teach About Science of Life

BY BONNIE BARSTOW
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The fact that all 458 sophomores at Appleton High school must take biology doesn't mean that they all are subjected to the same lectures, books and assignments.

The AHS biology department, which has greatly expanded in the last decade, is designed to create interest in the science of life and to teach it to students whose future paths will lead in widely differing directions.

Each level has different methods of instruction, texts, reference materials and objectives, geared to the students' abilities.

This sectioning helps both the fast and the slow learner, according to Jack Burroughs, biology department chairman. The slow learner and science-shy find their materials interesting, he explains, because now they can understand them. The average student is not stifled by the superior student's domination. The superior student finds himself

The honor class students do more dissections than the others do... such as earthworms, crayfish, insects, frogs, fish, and fetal pigs. The man and wife team of biology teacher Jack and English teacher Evelyn Burroughs help the honor students write a research paper which gives experience in biology, research techniques and writing.

The "H" section also makes field trips to Appleton Memorial hospital's pathology and radiology laboratories, where hospital staff members tell about blood counting and typing, metabolism testing and disease detection.

In this class, Burroughs concluded, "the aims, texts, methods and materials are entirely different from those used for the average student."

More Microscopes

New equipment also enriches today's biology classes. Fifteen years ago, when AHS students learned about the cells which comprise all organisms, each student would file by the biology department's only microscope to take a brief peek at the tiny bits of life. The teacher would adjust the microscope, and the students were cautioned just to look through it—not to touch the knobs.

Today there are 25 microscopes—one for every two students in one of the three laboratories. By staggering the time at which each class uses the instruments, the school gives each student the opportunity to manipulate a microscope and to make his own discoveries in the world it helps reveal. The biology department has thousands of slides for its students to examine through the microscope. They include just about everything from a butterfly's proboscis (that's its snout, biology students learn) to an earthworm's bristles.

6-Foot Bugs

Each biology laboratory has a microprojector to supplement the microscopes. The microprojector beams a six by six foot living picture onto a screen.

When living specimens are not available, motion pictures, colored slides and filmstrips and opaque projectors are used. Tape recorders and phonographs bring students the voices of Sir Julian Huxley or Eugene Rabinowitch, the biochemist, talking about the wonders of the living world.

The department has numerous plaster, rubber and plastic models of human organs and other living things. The best of these are like educational 3-dimensional jigsaw puzzles. In order to assemble them, the students must learn what the various parts look like and where they fit in relation to each other. The parts have the colors and often even the texture of actual body parts.

Library Doubled

Now as in the past, books are essential in the teaching of biology. The number of biology books in the high school library has more than doubled in the last 10 years, Burroughs points out. In 1950 there were 262 biology and health books; since that time 286 such books, in addition to other material, have been acquired.

"The whole complexion of the science section has changed under the guidance of Miss Ethelwyn Baerwaldt, AHS head librarian," Burroughs said. "For example, classroom libraries are now maintained in two of three biology rooms. This makes the reading and reference material more available to the student. This material is on the college as well as the secondary level."

Today's books are bigger and more elaborate than those of the past. As an example, Burroughs compared a 1951 edition of a high school biology text, which lists 1,800 terms in its index and a 1960 edition of "Modern Biology," which lists 5,600 terms.

Plastic Pages

Some of the newer books use pages of transparent plastic, printed in full color, to show layer by layer how organisms are constructed. Nearly all the books use colored pictures and diagrams.

Biology classrooms have many scientific and health magazines as well as books for the students' use.

The number of teachers has grown with other aspects of the department. Ten years ago there were three biology teachers; today there are five, representing a total of 50 years biology teaching experience.

In the last two years, three of the AHS biology teachers, Harvey Reinholz, Eugene Vandenberg and Thomas Farrell, have received National Science Foundation grants for graduate study at the University of Colorado and Kent State University in Ohio.

Club Supplements

Classroom biology work is supplemented by the Science club, sponsored by the department and under the guidance of Charles Scribner, club adviser. Club members include both sophomores in biology classes and upperclassmen in the chemistry and physics classes.

The Science club is active in the Junior Academy of Sciences, and members do research for presentation at academy meetings.

Ten students are doing research for this spring's sectional Junior Academy meeting at Lawrence college. Cynthia Rowe is studying the development of Aztalan, a new state park in which primitive culture is reconstructed; Robert Wink is studying the adding machine; Robert Green-wait, chlorella (one-celled green algae); Kathy Cook, stress and its relation to life; John Clark, muscle actions; Roy Noffke, mechanical television; Richard Boettcher, copper sulfate crystals; Thomas Stoeger, cigaret smoke and its effect on rats; Art Vaughn, Boolean algebra (algebra as a foundation for computers); and David Brandt, radioactive phosphorus 32 uptake in goldfish.

Thus both in and out of class, Appleton High students are encouraged to exercise the curiosity that makes them ask biology's two basic questions—"What is life?" and "What does it mean to be alive?"

Cooperative Nursery Has Varied Days

Mothers, Fathers Lend Talents to Childrens' School

In its first year of operation, the Appleton Cooperative nursery has found its cooperative nature has helped it provide a varied program for the 20 children who attend three days a week.

The non-profit organization was organized by a group of mothers, with the help of Mrs. Mary Connet, state consultant on day care. The mothers take turns assisting Mrs. Stanley Grienier, nursery teacher, care for 3 1/2 to 5-year-old children each Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 8.45 to 11.15 a.m.

Sometimes the mothers give programs for the children. Mrs. Robert Lindsey has read to them; Mrs. I. L. Heiberg played the violin, and Mrs. Max Freeman has recited poems. On "dress-up" day, Mrs. Freeman took pictures of the children in their costumes.

Visit Fire Department

In November, the children went with Mrs. Grienier and five assisting mothers to the Appleton Fire department. Sgt. John Van Bommel, of the police department, visited the nursery to speak on safety.

In December, Mrs. Dennis Bahcall explained the Chanukah holiday and the children went to the Appleton Public library to see the Christmas puppet show. Mrs. Edwin Le-gard, Mrs. Ronald Jilek and Mrs. Kenneth J. Siegrist baked Christmas cookies, and the children frosted them in school.

Edward Tilley, instrumental music instructor in the Appleton public schools, played string instruments for the children last month.

Parents Make Equipment

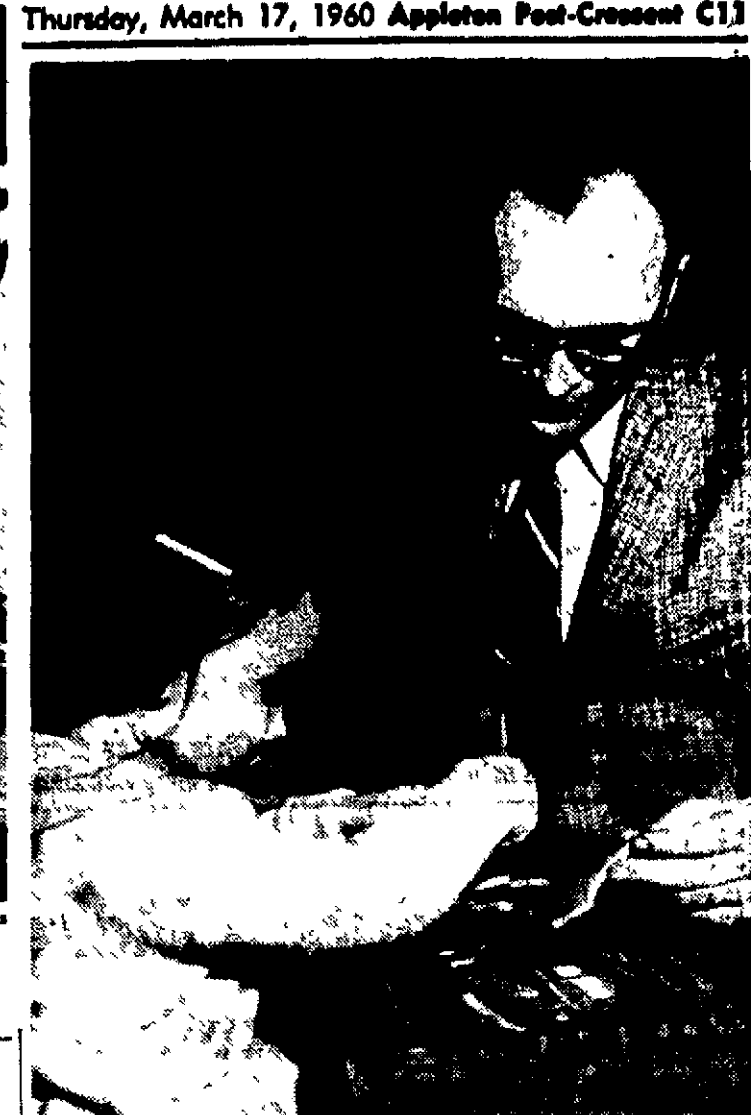

Parents have made much of the nursery's equipment. Dr. Kenneth S. Siegrist made a doll bed; John Boon, a work bench; Dr. Edwin Olson, two painting easels, a chest for the blocks and a tumbling barrel;

Blind Man Pledges Eyes For Others

Chester, N.Y. — A blind young man has pledged his eyes so that two other blind persons may see.

Robert L. Card lost his sight in an automobile accident two years ago.

a group of fathers, a barn, a boat and a buddy car; and Mrs. Siegrist, doll clothes.

Other new equipment includes a wash stand, rocking boat, an indoor playground set, a stethoscope, tools, puzzles, a puzzle rack, train, dairy wagon, hobby horse, dishes, carpet sweeper, playground ball, snow shovels, trucks, an ironing board and a doll buggy.

The cooperative members meet monthly. The nursery is licensed by the state and is visited several times a year by a state nursery supervisor.

Mrs. Joseph Weger, Jr., is accepting applications for the fall semester.

he had time to ponder his situation.

"Either I could lay around feeling sorry for myself and make everyone around me miserable, or I could make the best of it, start life again and try to get a job."

Recently, Card pledged his corneas during an eye conservation drive by the Middle-town Lions club. His corneas were not damaged. When he dies, they will be transplanted in the eyes of two blind persons.

A transplant cannot help Card.

Brothers Plead Guilty Of Disorderly Conduct

Three Milwaukee brothers pleaded guilty of disorderly conduct when they appeared before Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmiede.

They are Glen, 21, Delbert, 29, and Jerry Wyant, 20. Delbert paid a $40 fine. His brothers, unable to pay $40 fines, were sentenced to 10 days each in the Outagamie county jail.

The trio was arrested by county police after they were found in a drunken condition in a car parked in the town of Horton.

When Father Visited the Appleton Cooperative nursery, Nancy Gall found that John Gall could help her build a tower of bright blocks.

More People To Tour Europe by Automobile Than Ever Before

Washington —(AP)— Indications are that more Americans will tour Europe by automobile next summer than ever before, says Russell E. Singer, executive vice president of the American Automobile association.

The AAA issued 94,000 international driving permits in 1959, he says. Early applications for 1960 permits indicate that approximately 120,000 will be issued this year, says Singer.

AAA issuance of permits in 1959 doubled the number issued in 1956 and were three-times the number issued in 1955. "Americans," Singer says, "are finding that drive-yourself trips through Europe bring them the same flexibility for seeing out-of-the-way places, as they enjoy at home."

These Days

Many Variables Make Politics, Economics Difficult to Predict

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

New York — The world is full of prophets, tipsters, pundits and soothsayers. They all know what is to happen. In general terms, it is possible to have some idea of what may happen. For instance, we know that unless we are destroyed by an H-bomb or a rocket, Nov. 8 an election will take place for a president of the United States. There will be two major candidates and that one will be elected. Nobody has been nominated yet but there are already prophets who are ready to say who will be elected.

Bernard M. Baruch, who has done well for himself by being correct at the right time, said way back in 1955 "No one, not even the most experienced trader, economist or business man can predict with certainty the course of the stock market. Whether stocks rise or fall is determined by innumerable forces and elements, by economic conditions, the actions of governments, the state of international affairs, the emotions of people—even the vagaries of the weather."

Sputnik Scare

The prophets are really gamblers. They fail to take into account the imponderables which are so important politically. For instance, Castro is a nuisance beyond his metes in 1960 because it is an election year. There is no telling what such a man will do, particularly if he gets hold of a Mig. No present calculations about the November election can exclude Castro.

Isolated factors in themselves may be startling but not conclusive. Sputnik scared a great many Americans living. Some of them even began to study Russian. Actually, we have done as well as the Russians have in this particular race. It is not very important whether we or they are ahead. Sooner or later, every country will manufacture means of devastation and then halt to realize that thus far, all these weapons exist and have not been used. Talk is still the principal weapon of diplomacy and war.

The signs of the times are hard to discern. When President Eisenhower says that Latin American-United States relations are at their peak, does he mean that they are about to deteriorate? The signs figures of speech rarely apply to international relations. Our relations with Latin America cannot be so good, if the president has to rub poison-gas out of his eyes during a triumphal procession of friendship.

Baruch's Thermometer

Let us quote again from Baruch's 1955 statement: "This distinction between the thermometer and the fever is a crucial one. We face one kind of problem if the thermometer is not working properly. But outward symptoms should not be mistaken for fundamental causes. The thermometer should not be blamed for reflecting all the uncertainties of a world which is neither at war nor at peace, or of the effects of the actions taken by different business managements or of the inflationary policies which have been pursued for so long."

The times are uncertain and the results of policies are uncertain. Our government ought to speak honestly to our people and tell them where we have made the three or four mistakes that have got us into trouble. For we are in trouble and Latin America is too important for us to pass by. We are going through a classical inflationary period which has been moving faster year by year since about 1948.

One characteristic of the second stage of an inflation, that is, the stage when the capitalist begins to look for cover, is that there is a shift of investments in stocks to wild speculation in real estate. This always happens because when speculators regard themselves as too spread out, then try to cover by what they believe is a safer although less spectacular investment. The third phase is when the very wise man deserts the stock market and the real estate speculation to make himself, as he calls it, liquid. That is, he holds on to cash in the hope of picking up things at cheap prices when they fall.

Rats Do Turnabout In Experiment by High School Senior

Lander, Wyo. — Wilma Fee, a high school senior, forgot one little technical fact in her science experiment. She was raising two rats on separate diets for her project at the annual state science fair. Rat No. 1, fed milk, naturally gained weight faster than Rat No. 2, who wasn't fed milk. Suddenly the experiment went haywire. Rat No. 2 grew bigger and bigger. Wilma had overlooked the factor of romance. Rat No. 2 was expecting.

Sen. Kennedy Opens Another Campaign Tour

Not Yet Certain Of Victory, He Says in Madison

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Sen. John Kennedy, who needs a Wisconsin primary election sweep to bring him the Democratic presidential nomination, started another Wisconsin campaign swing today giving every appearance of confidence of triumph here in the April 5 balloting.

The senator started a brisk schedule of campaign meetings here Wednesday night at least an hour off schedule, but he was unhurried and unworried.

He wore the air of a man who is comfortably ahead and knows it.

Not Certain
But playing according to the orthodox rules, Kennedy listed in a press interview that he is not yet certain of Wisconsin victory and will leave no stone unturned in campaign effort in the remaining weeks before the convention delegate selection next month.

Kennedy smiled benevolently when a Wisconsin reporter noted that he appeared remarkably calm and relaxed—in contrast to earlier appearances—but observed that the fatigue of his campaign work is beginning to be felt.

He mildly side-stepped questions about the alleged prediction of National Chairman Paul Butler that he will win the nomination.

"We all make guesses in this business, don't we?" he rejoined.

Concern of People
He also readily conceded, in this capital city where the 1952 and 1956 nominee has many fans, that Adlai Stevenson would be in a "very strong position" under certain circumstances because he has a lot of supporters.

Wisconsin people show a ready grasp of the issues in national and international politics, he remarked, and he has found that in domestic affairs his local listeners are generally concerned about federal aid to education and farm pricing he continued.

But Kennedy obviously wants no let-up in his smoothly operating local campaign. He allowed that it is "going better now" than before, but he would predict only that he will win a majority of the Wisconsin delegation of 31 convention votes by carrying five congressional districts and the state at large popular vote.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. said Wednesday at La Crosse that Sen. John F. Kennedy would probably retain some of the present cabinet members if he is elected president.

Roosevelt, campaigning for Kennedy, did not indicate the reason for his opinion and did not name the cabinet members concerned.

He also said that Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the likely Republican nominee, will probably "repudiate" Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson after the GOP national convention this summer.

Humphrey's son, Hubert Jr., was scheduled to arrive in Wisconsin today with Mrs. Muriel Humphrey to help the senator's campaign.

Mrs. Henry Petersen Dies in Minneapolis

Mrs. Henry Petersen, 94, Minneapolis, formerly of Appleton, died Wednesday in Minneapolis. She was born May 16, 1865, in Milwaukee, and lived in Appleton until moving to Minneapolis about 50 years ago.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at Riverside cemetery chapel, with the Rev. H. Shelby Lee, pastor of First Congregational church, in charge. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery. The Wichmann Funeral home is in charge of Appleton arrangements.

Mrs. Petersen is survived by two sons, George, Minneapolis, and Walter, Largo, Fla.; and three sisters, Mrs. Fred Kobussen and Mrs. George Britton, both of Appleton, and Mrs. Binnie Dollman, Fond du Lac.

Shure and the Irish Shovel welders are having it easy this year. This St. Patrick's day weather picture shows the way the Fox Cities looked a year ago today as residents dug out from under another in a series of big snowfalls. Winds up to 44 miles an hour whipped eight inches of new snow into huge drifts and public transportation came to a standstill. Five Wisconsin trains were stalled by that storm, including the 400 near Ballard road east of Appleton.

Two Boys Put On Probation One Involved in Series of Thefts; Other 'Rode Along'

Two 18-year-old Seymour youths were placed on probation Wednesday by Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmiede, for a series of thefts dating from last December and the other for disorderly conduct.

Larry Mills was given four years probation on seven counts, including theft of 219 gallons of gasoline, saws and tires from farms in Brown and Outagamie county.

James Rusch was placed on probation for one year for disorderly conduct. He rode along with Mills on several trips but did not participate in the thefts, Sheriff's Lt. Jack Zuelzke said. He arrested the boys Tuesday afternoon. Richard Schrickel of the Brown county sheriff's department, aided Zuelzke in the investigation which led to the boys' arrest.

Predicts Tax Revision Plan Not be Passed

Says Democrats Will Default on Nelson's Promises

Madison—A leading Republican legislator predicted here last night that the Democrats in the legislature will refuse to pass a tax revision bill in the legislative session that will convene May 16, even if Gov. Nelson's citizens' advisory commission brings in a recommendation.

Paul Alfonsi, Vilas county assemblyman who acknowledged that he is considering a candidacy for lieutenant governor, claimed that the Democrats will default upon the tax revision pledge Nelson made in his successful campaign two years ago.

Alfonsi said Nelson has been intimidated by leaders of his own party who don't want the Democrats to have a tax record to defend in the 1960 election. He named such men as Sen. William Proxmire, William T. Evjue, Madison publisher, and Madison Mayor Ivan Nestingen.

"The legislature will tinker with present tax laws and then leave the fundamental tax reform job to the 1960 legislature which again will be under the control of the Republicans," said Alfonsi, a speaker of the Wisconsin assembly about 20 years ago and now co-chairman of a Republican "truth squad."

The Republican legislative campaign team was organized by GOP Chairman Claude J. Jasper to exploit issues the GOP feels have arisen out of Nelson's first term record. Their assignment is to follow Nelson on the campaign trail this summer and fall and refute his speeches.

3 1/2 Inches of Snow Falls On Fox Cities

There was little natural green showing in the Fox Cities this St. Patrick's day. A 9 1/2-hour snowfall abetted by more than 24 hours of snow flurries covered the area with some 3 1/2 inches of new snow.

Despite the setback in the area's march toward spring, the Fox Cities did not suffer as much from the storm as parts of the southern section of the state.

Racine was hit by nine inches and Kenosha and Milwaukee had more than seven inches. These falls were accompanied by howling winds that whipped up monumental drifts.

The storm—that was supposed to have bypassed the Fox Cities—sent its advance guard into the area about 11 a.m. Wednesday in flurries. It settled down to a steady snowfall by noon that did not end until about 9:30 p.m. Flurries continued after dark and were still at it at noon today.

The weatherman expects the snow to stop this evening to make way for a sunny Friday.

The high temperature Wednesday was 29 and the low during the night was 24. At 10:30 a.m. today the temperature was 30.

Addition Defeated At Twin Willows

Second Special Meeting Called To Reconsider Building Action

Residents of the Twin Willows school district Wednesday night voted down a 4-room addition to the school but approved the purchase of three acres of land adjacent to the school.

Immediately after the meeting, a group of voters petitioned for another special meeting at 8:30 p.m. next Thursday to reconsider action on the building.

The $66,300 addition was defeated by a 29-24 vote and the land purchase approved by a 32-21 vote. More than four times as many people went out in the snow to vote at the special meeting than attended the district's annual meeting in July.

The Twin Willows school, which had 22 students in its 1-room school 10 years ago, now has 91 students in three rooms. School census figures indicate that there will be 107 students next fall and 180 in 1965.

Four Rooms Needed
School board president Ira Livingston said the school will need four rooms and four teachers next year, five by 1961, six by 1962 and seven by 1964. The basement of the present school can be used temporarily as a fourth classroom if new lighting and equipment are purchased and if the state approves, he said. The basement has windows and a fire exit and is not damp "except when it rains," Livingston said. It has been used as a classroom in the past.

The proposal for adding to the school is "all pretty sudden to some of us," said Randall Reuss, who said the district should wait a year before building. Several women said they wanted to talk the matter over with their husbands before deciding.

Look at Other Districts
Reuss also suggested waiting to see what happens to the Badger and Triangle schools, which lie south of Twin Willows and west of Appleton. The Outagamie and Calumet county school committees will decide next month whether the two districts should be attached to Appleton for school purposes, and the city may move to have them annexed for all city purposes.

The proposed Twin Willows addition would be attached south of the original building. It would be low enough so windows above it would provide light in the old room. New toilets to be built in the old part would meet the state code but "not be overabundant," said Architect John Tillemann, Green Bay.

Because the proposed classrooms would be 28 by 30 feet instead of 26 by 28 feet as in the two built in 1953, the addition would come closer to County Trunk A. A fence could be built to keep children off the highway, Livingston said, and the new land will provide play area farther from the road.

A woman asked where people would park their cars after the addition was built. Livingston answered that parking cars was a minor problem compared with that of parking youngsters.

Adjournment Controversy
If the addition is not built this year, seventh and eighth graders may have to attend Appleton junior high schools on a tuition basis, Livingston said. This will depend on enrollment. If tuition must be paid for these students, Livingston estimated that the district tax rate for schools would be 24.70 per $1,000. If a new school is built, he estimated the rate to be $22.70.

A controversy arose when the time came for adjournment. While one woman was trying to decide to which date the meeting should be adjourned so the building issue could be reconsidered, another stood up and moved adjournment without setting a date.

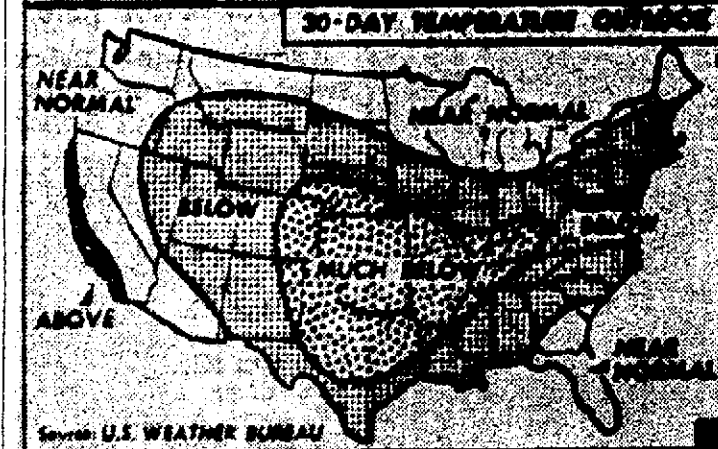

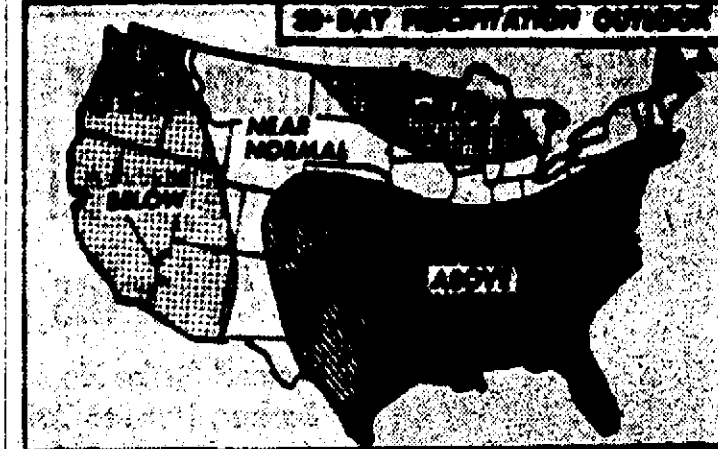

Robert Andres, meeting chairman, recognized the adjournment motion, and a 26-14 vote adjourned the meeting. Signing the petition for the March 24 meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Cletus R. Bartlett, Mrs. Ira Livingston, Mrs. Richard Studley, Mr. and Mrs. Ronnel Sieber, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goodyear and Mrs. Richard Natrop.

Clark Oil Firm Sets Sales Record

The Clark Oil and Refining corporation in 1959 established new annual sales records in both quantity of refined products and dollar volume.

Emory T. Clark, president, reported sales on a net basis after deducting gasoline taxes, were $87,366,414, an increase of $11,973,300, compared with $75,393,114 for 1958.

Consolidated net income in 1959 advanced to $2,125,994. This represents an increase of $704,016 over earnings of $1,422,978 for 1958. Based on 1,528,124 shares outstanding Dec. 31, 1959, net income was equivalent to $1.39 a share compared with 93 cents for the previous year.

These Maps, Based on those issued today by the United States Weather bureau in Washington, shows the outlook in temperature and precipitation for the next 30 days.

Negotiations Underway in Craft Trades

3-Year Pact for Construction Workers Expires April 1

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — Three negotiating sessions affecting building trades unions in the Marinette to Fond du Lac area have been held since February, with little progress toward a contract, union men said today.

The present 3-year pact was written after a 2-week strike in 1957 affecting about 4,000 building trades workers in the Fox river valley-Lake Winnebago area. Workers include laborers, carpenters, masons and truck drivers.

Separate negotiations are being conducted on a local level for electricians, painters and sheet metal workers, whose contracts expire April 30, and by roofing trade workers, whose contracts also expire April 1.

Chairmen of the building trades meeting with contractors in Oshkosh are Wilbert Raatz, Appleton, construction laborers; Clarence Jeske, Oshkosh, masons; Harry Boerschinger, Green Bay, carpenters, and Walter Tank, Oshkosh, truck drivers. Current wage scales are $2.42 hourly for laborers, $3.05 for carpenters, $3.50 for masons and $2.52 and $2.60 for truck drivers.

Contractors have the obligation to call negotiating sessions under the direction of Merle Phelan, Fond du Lac, Associated General Contractors chairman, reported John O'Malley, business agent for the Greater Green Bay Building Trades council.

It is understood the union is seeking a 1-year pact this year.

No Wage Talk
O'Malley said it is hoped that all crafts will agree to sign their respective contracts at the same time to eliminate the possibility of one craft calling a work stoppage when others have contracts negotiated and signed.

"Presently, all indications are that work will continue without a general strike," O'Malley said. He noted there is some unemployment in the area among the trades, and cited this as a factor in avoiding a strike.

O'Malley said nothing has been discussed at the opening negotiations meetings concerning wages, hours or working conditions.

There has been some discussion at the first meetings on how long a laborer must be employed by a contractor before he can apply for union membership. The contract specifies 31 days, but under the terms of the new Landrum-Griffin bill it can be dropped to seven days. Contractors want a laborer employed for 90 days before he can submit membership to the union, O'Malley said.

Radio Renounces Vote on Berlin

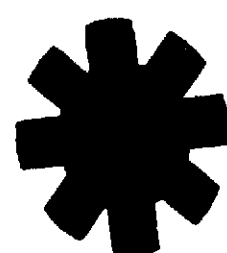

Berlin — R— Communist east Germany's radio today denounced the idea of a vote in West Berlin on the city's future as designed to keep it occupied territory.

The vote was proposed by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in Washington Wednesday. The communist radio said he is trying to present the May summit conference an accomplished fact.

The communists want to make West Berlin a demilitarized free city, which would mean withdrawal of the U.S., British and French garrisons. This has been rejected by the West.

The plebiscite proposal was ignored in news columns of the communist morning papers, as often happens with a late-breaking story from the West.

West Berlin newspapers played it prominently, treating it as something of a surprise.

Sees No Way Of Reducing Future Taxes

Mayor Green Says Cost of Services Means Higher Levies

"There is no practical way taxes can be reduced, and there will be an ever-increasing tax load unless citizens are willing to curtail government services," Mayor Stanley Green, Sturgeon Bay, told Appleton Kiwanis members and the Appleton Chamber of Commerce legislative committee Wednesday.

Green is a member of the governor's committee on taxation and a past president of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities.

Scraping Barrel
He said Wisconsin's wonderland of taxes compares to the situation in Alice in Wonderland. Those similar to the queen of hearts shout "off with their heads" at the mention of a sales tax. The Tweedle Dees and Tweedle Dums carry on heated debates over nothing. The tax committee's reports are reminiscent of the walrus' statement on discussing many things... "cabbages and kings."

The state tax plan didn't grow through formula, rule or reason, Green said, but through public need and pressure.

The last three legislatures, he added, instead of devising a tax system, have scraped the bottom of the barrel to meet emergencies. "The last one knocked the bottom out of the barrel."

He said most people aren't willing to accept a cutback in state services, so a comprehensive method of taxation must be initiated.

'Home Rule' Cost

Green said he favors a sales tax to put a third leg on our 2-legged tax structure. The sales tax could be used to reduce the high property tax, he added.

The "home rule" concept in Wisconsin is one major cause of high property taxes, he pointed out. This concept is more democratic, but more expensive, he said, because of inefficiency.

This is true both in schools and the administration of various county offices. "The state already is supervising schools and they should help pay for them." The added efficiency would come through such things as merging of school districts and county offices.

Durocher, Laraine Day Reach Parting of Ways

Hollywood — (AP) — The movie's Laraine Day and baseball's Leo Durocher have reached the parting of the ways. For months the actress and her colorful husband have denied there was any trouble with their marriage. But today her lawyer said they are separating and that a property settlement is being worked out. He declined to say whether it would be a divorce or a legal separation.

Oshkosh Little Theater Casting 'Auntie Mame'

Community Players to Stage First Non-Professional Showing in World

BY JINGO

The Oshkosh Community theater is casting a most ambitious undertaking in preparation for making little theater history. The undertaking is the production of "Auntie Mame," that fabulous musical comedy that rocketed through Broadway stage and screen successes guided by the talented hand of Rosalind Russell.

The piece of history to be made just west of Oshkosh's main stem is the first non-professional production of "Auntie Mame" in the world.

The reason for this lack of interest in a smash property is 2-fold: A community theater director must be thrice blessed to get an appropriate lead and the company must be replete with technical wizardry to provide the proper settings for the whirlwind heroine.

The Oshkosh Community theater is running on a high tide of fine productions, topped — it is reported — by the latest, "The Solid Gold Cadillac," and this production could very well be the crest.

Jingo is kicking himself for missing some of the 194 sporting events aired over NBC last year. Being selfish in retrospect, Jingo, figuring on just one ticket for each of those events, including five championship fights and six World Series games, finds the entire card would have cost $1,157.

It is appropriate today to announce the serious return to television of Mickey Rooney. On March 31 the "Revlon Revue" will stage "The Many Sides of Mickey Rooney" on CBS. There will be a good job of editing to cover that subject in just one hour. The stage and screen lepre-

Lillian Hellman Both Dramatist, Lyricist

New York —(AP)— In beginning her career as one of Broadway's most successful playwrights, Lillian Hellman started by writing a few poems which were published. The poems, now and then, became lyrics for songs.

Now in her new Broadway play, "Toys in the Attic," she has the leading role.

At one point he pauses to strum a banjo and sing a Creole folk song which fits the mood of the play, a story about New Orleans. Miss Hellman wrote the lyrics for the song. Its title is "Big Day."

'Call on Kuprin' Being Cast for Broadway

New York —(AP)— A new Broadway play now being cast by producers Robert E. Griffith and Harold S. Prince is "Call on Kuprin."

The stage dramatization by Maurice Edelman is about two Englishmen who try to win over the services of a Russian rocket scientist for the West.

'On the Beach' No Movie Of Escape From Problems

BY BONNIE BARSTOW Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"On the Beach" . . . To a person unfamiliar with the story, the movie by this title might sound like a happy one about swimming and sunbathing. A show one might see for an hour's escape from the troubles of the world.

But "On the Beach" now playing at the Appleton theater, is just the opposite. It shows the problems of the world, including the greatest problem—that of human survival—right into the laps of the audience.

The story takes place in 1964, just after an atomic war has ended. The great powers of the world have destroyed themselves and most of the rest of the world; only Australia is still alive. "On the Beach" tells how people face the slow death they know is inevitable as the radioactive drift reaches their continent.

Screens Tell Story The story was adapted by John Paxton from Nevil Shute's powerful novel. Producer-director Stanley Kramer has molded a star-studded cast (headed by Gregory Peck, Ava Gardner, Fred Astaire, Anthony Perkins and newcomer Donna Anderson) into a performance in which stars do as they should—their primary task is to tell the story.

"On the Beach" has the ingredients of a good movie. It has satire, for the unusual situation of the last survivors of atomic war makes the usual follies of mankind more obvious.

It has irony in the fact that the scientist whose job was to save lives risked his own life in an automobile race.

Symbolism. Realism. It has symbolism in that same race, in which the scientist defies predictions and wins.

It has realism such that 1964 seems no farther from the present than it actually is.

It has fear, which manifests itself in very different ways in different people.

It has love, overdone at times but still minor in comparison with the major plot.

It has hope, but it is not an earthly hope.

It has a message, explicit in the words of the scientist to the submarine crew and implicit in the whole play. "On the Beach" is neither a satire, Anthony Perkins and movie of escape nor a movie newcomer Donna Anderson) one can escape.

Actress Bette Davis smiles at Carl Sandburg on stage on opening night of "An Evening with Carl Sandburg" in Hollywood. The poet called Davis the most superb trouper that ever came out of Hollywood and cited her for her 56-city tour with the show. Miss Davis says she now is ready for a Broadway play.

Kaufman Comedy on Cabbie and Poetess

New York —(AP)— Playwright George S. Kaufman and his actress-wife Leueen MacGrath have written a play together called "I Give It Six Months."

The comedy concerns a New York cab driver and an English poetess. Producer Gilbert Miller will present it as soon as he has found a suitable English actress for the role of the poetess.

Italian Actor In Hollywood For 2 Months

Actors' Strike No Bother, Here to Talk About Future Role

Hollywood —(AP)— Rosanno Brazzi picked a fine time to pay a return visit to Hollywood—right in the midst of the actors' strike. He's here for a 2-month stay, but the strike won't keep him idle. He's doing a TV show for the June Allyson theater and may do others—TV is unaffected by the strike. He has been talking to studios about future assignments.

"One of them will be a $15 million production," said the Italian actor, who was suspect about naming it. (I suspect it is MGM's "Charlemagne," to be filmed in cinerama.) "The thing I like best about the project is that I will not be cast as a lover. Thank heaven for that! I absolutely refuse to play lovers again."

Hollywood, he complained, can see him as nothing but the romantic type and keeps casting him thusly.

'South Pacific' Big Break Brazzi's biggest Hollywood break was as the French planter in "South Pacific." He has reservations about how the picture came out. He argued with the film makers that the film develop the character he played, a strong man who had once committed murder, rather than following the bare outlines in the play. But his arguments weren't heeded.

Nor did he win out in his wishes about delivering the songs.

"I wanted to sing 'Some Enchanted Evening' in my own voice, which is plenty good enough," he said. "I would have done it gently, convincingly." Instead, he said, the voice of an operatic basso was dubbed in this country, but Brazzi said it faced problems in Europe.

"I had to work with the cutter to remove 34 minutes from the picture for showing in Italy," he remarked. "Most of it was songs. The Italians can't understand how two people can be playing a love scene and suddenly burst into song. If they want music, they get it from opera."

The same is true in France. The picture did better in Germany, which doesn't have as much of an operatic tradition. Regardless of a strike settlement, Brazzi doesn't expect to remain here long. He and some associates have bought a big studio in Rome, where the movie business is booming.

Parking areas close to downtown might have a specified parking period for a certain fee to accommodate shoppers' while lots farther away from the business district might be utilized by persons employed in the business district.

Serving on this committee will be S. N. Pickard as chairman, Arthur R. Hedlund, John Corr, Harmon McCarthy and Ambrose Owen from the chamber committee and four aldermen, Warren Sanders, Peter Fara, and James Dinius and Paul Hansen, Public Works Director Wayne Bryan and the mayor.

19 Fox Cities Students Win In Forensics

District Meeting
March 23 at OSC

Menasha — Nineteen Fox Cities high school students will be eligible to compete in the district forensics contest Wednesday, March 23, at Oshkosh State college, as a result of league eliminations Wednesday at Menasha High school.

"A" ratings were received by 12 Kaukauna High school students, four from Neenah, six from Menasha and one from Appleton.

Extemporaneous reading top ratings were given JoAnn Heppell, Karen Krumm and Frances Nelson, all of Kaukauna; Joyce Bethard, Menasha; and Betty Crane, Neenah.

All entries in the oratory class received "A's" — Barbara Otte, Joanne Haen, Lynn Pedman and Dwight Bastian, all of Kaukauna, and John Asmus and Cathy Christman, both of Menasha.

The Neenah play reading group was the only one of three entries receiving an "A."

Kaukauna's Ann Schermittler and Margaret Carr and Neenah's Janice Stark won the "As" in the 4 - minute speech category.

Interpretative reading top honors were taken by Nikki Rosenthal and Julie Biggers of Menasha and Helen Tolversen of Neenah.

All three of Kaukauna's extemporaneous speaking entries took top ratings. They were DeLyle Bowers, Lynn Kehoe and Lots Welhouse. Other winners in the class, were Neil Stillings, Appleton; Bill Steffens and Gary Gooding, both of Menasha; and Jane Hauser, Neenah.

Appleton's only other entry won a "B" rating, in extemporaneous reading.

"B" ratings also went to five Menasha students, two from Neenah and three from day when fire broke out in a Kimberly. "C" ratings went to one Menashan and two from Neenah.

Council Buys Land From Jandrey Firm

E. Doty Avenue Site to be Used for Off-Street Parking; Costs Set at $20,500

Neenah — Purchase of property on E. Doty avenue adjacent to the new police station from the Jandrey company was authorized by the council Wednesday.

The $20,500 price will come from parking meter receipts and the land will be used for off-street parking. The city attorney was instructed to draw up the purchase contract.

Ald. Carl Coenen thought the price was rather steep for a parking lot but Mayor Bell replied the site now has a building used by the Jandrey company for a warehouse and a residence that is rented.

The property was appraised by the city's appraiser at $17,000 and by the Jandrey company appraiser at $24,000. The property was offering the city use taking into accounts its usefulness. The average of the two appraisals gave the $20,500 price.

"Aren't we going hog wild on parking areas?" Coenen asked. "The police have checked the lots and have found they are not full, even on Friday nights. The new shopping center may draw people out and leave us with empty lots."

Ald. Warren Sanders replied the Jandrey site is a key piece of property in the plan for parking. It is adjacent to the E. Columbian avenue parking lots and to the police station. Whether it would cost less if we waited two to five years is hard to say, he added.

Ald. Peter Fara's motion to purchase the Jandrey site was passed unanimously.

Ald. Leonard Hedberg, public protection committee chairman, reported the Wisconsin - Michigan Power company was offering the city use of land for parking along the west side of the Chicago and North Western tracks off E. North Water street which would handle about 25 cars.

The council approved his motion to have the city enter into agreement for use of the site and to have city crews develop the site at a cost of about $700, using parking meter receipts for the project.

farms in the state, down 30,000 in the last 15 years, and asked what is wrong with dairying. He cited four solutions often given.

One was that if price controls are removed from milk, the price of milk will drop $1.50 per hundredweight in four years. Another was that if all controls and price supports are taken off, enough dairymen will be driven out and prices will go up.

Third Belief

A third belief is that by 1965 chances are good that supply and demand will level off. The fourth one was that in the dairy business the increased population will not take care of the increased production and some controls or quotas will be necessary.

Anyone planning to go into the dairy business in the state should have good cows, he stressed. "You can lose more money with 100 poor cows than with 25 poor cows. It is not the number of cows that is important but the average production per cow."

The average production per cow in the country is below 7,000 pounds of milk while that for Wisconsin is 8,000 pounds a year.

Using reasonable cost figures it would take 30 cows averaging 13,000 pounds of milk a year, 37 cows averaging 11,000 pounds, 50 cows averaging 9,000 pounds and 72 cows averaging 7,000 pounds to get the same return on investment.

It is the lower producing cow that produces the surplus, he indicated. He also told how the cost for feeding would become greater for the poorer producing cows since there are more of them needed to get the same return compared with the smaller but better producing herds.

Many cows can give better yields by better managing and better feeding, he cited.

"5 Lives of a Cat"

Thom outlined the five lives of man as being the economic, family, social, religious and political and stressed that too often we neglect the political life by not taking part or keeping abreast of governmental activities.

"Are you encouraging your family to take a good long look at the blessings of this country. U.S. stands for 'us' and not just for the United States. Prepare to make sure America is going in the right direction."

Government by 1-man rule

Today is St. Patrick's day and the garb of the traditional saint of the Irish was donned by Patrick Crane, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Crane, 873 Jefferson street, Menasha, for his appearance at St. John's school where he is a first grade student.

Oshkosh to Get Third Reservoir

Oshkosh — Construction of a 1 million gallon reservoir and feeder main along Merritt avenue has been approved by the state board of health. Chapell and Amundson will do the construction work at a cost of $228,000.

The reservoir, which will be built to the south of the existing two reservoirs, will feed a 24 inch main to be laid along Merritt avenue, across Main street along Church avenue where it will turn south on Wisconsin and east on Pearl to Daves where it will hook on to the existing main.

At the same time the main is being laid, a storm sewer also will be put in along Merritt avenue. Bids for the latter project are due by April 1.

seems to be the most popular form of government today. Thom outlined, as he referred to the various dictatorships around the world. "What can we all do together to help the world and not just ourselves? We must accept the responsibility that is ours."

The United States is about the only place where you can guide and direct your destiny and you should be very thankful you live in this country, he stressed.

Wise as a Serpent, Harmless as a Dove,' Recipe of NHS Dean

BY MARION DREW
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Neenah — "To keep the channels open between teachers and high school students one must be as wise as the serpent and harmless as the dove."

Miss Margaret Griffith, dean of girls, is a discerning and witty woman, who has been counselling, teaching, advising and disciplining girls at Neenah High school for the past 14 years. She speaks enthusiastically and humorously of her job.

"I love it and I love teenagers most of the time. The majority of them are wonderful youngsters who want answers. They like authority and guidance and, if they think you are fair, they like firmness. I never know what the day will bring — it may be dispensing aspirin, a serious family problem or a request to cut a class to hear Senator Kennedy — it could be anything. We make practically no exceptions for absence — the only legitimate excuses are illness or a death in the family.

"We believe that the first step in delinquency is often truancy. Here at the Neenah High school we check absences every day.

"Roll call is taken in the first class, and by 9 a.m. I have the list of every absent girl and boy. By 10 a.m. I have telephoned their homes and when there is no answer, I go to the house. This may take the rest of the morning. Consequently we have very few unexcused absences and there are many days when I do not leave the office."

There are approximately 500 girls in the high school, and Miss Griffith has a personal conference with each freshman. Among the questions asked are the size of the family, previous schools attended, religion, what work she is interested in, what courses she would like to take, her plans for the future and other pertinent questions.

By the end of the first semester Miss Griffith knows each girl by name and has a general idea how her studies are progressing.

All students are given aptitude and placement tests during their entire four year course.

"By the time they are seniors we have 12 to 14 scores and it makes a counselling job fairly accurate. About 50 per cent of the students are taking a college preparatory course and we prepare them to take college board examinations, which are now required for almost every college in the country."

Choosing College
Choosing the college itself is the topic of conferences with the girls and Miss Griffith. "I make suggestions, which they discuss with their parents, and we all learn something from each other."

Some girls simply are not interested in college, even when there is no financial problem, and Miss Griffith suggests courses they can take which will prepare them for work they will enjoy. Sometimes they will take a postgraduate year of business studies which will give them an even better background for a career in their chosen field.

"One of our chief problems is to keep the high schools from getting too tough academically for the average student. Colleges are becoming more selective every day and requirements in the preparatory schools more rigid. A percentage of students simply are not college material, and for these we must have courses which will hold their interest and fit them for a fulfilling and satisfactory job. We have a general course, as well as courses in business education, home economics and industrial arts. All students fit into one of these categories and can have a high educational experience."

Activities
When asked about extra-curricular activities Miss Griffith said the high schools had to provide a great many interests outside of the academic work because many parents today are "too busy" to plan family activities.

"Teenagers have tremendous energy and they are going to let off steam somewhere. If parents would plan to spend more time with their young people it would be better for them as well as for their children, but a great many of them want their own social life, and expect their children to have theirs. Incidentally, the high school group a boy or girl associates with is very important. "We know there is some drinking along a small percentage of the students — sometimes with the sanction of the parents who shrug it off with 'It's better to have them drinking at home.' This may be hard to believe, but it's true in a few cases.

Keep Lid On
"All we can do is keep the lid on here, and this we do. But parents who go off on vacations, leaving their teenagers at home 'because they are old enough' are asking for trouble. Nobody likes coming home to an empty house with no dinner prepared."

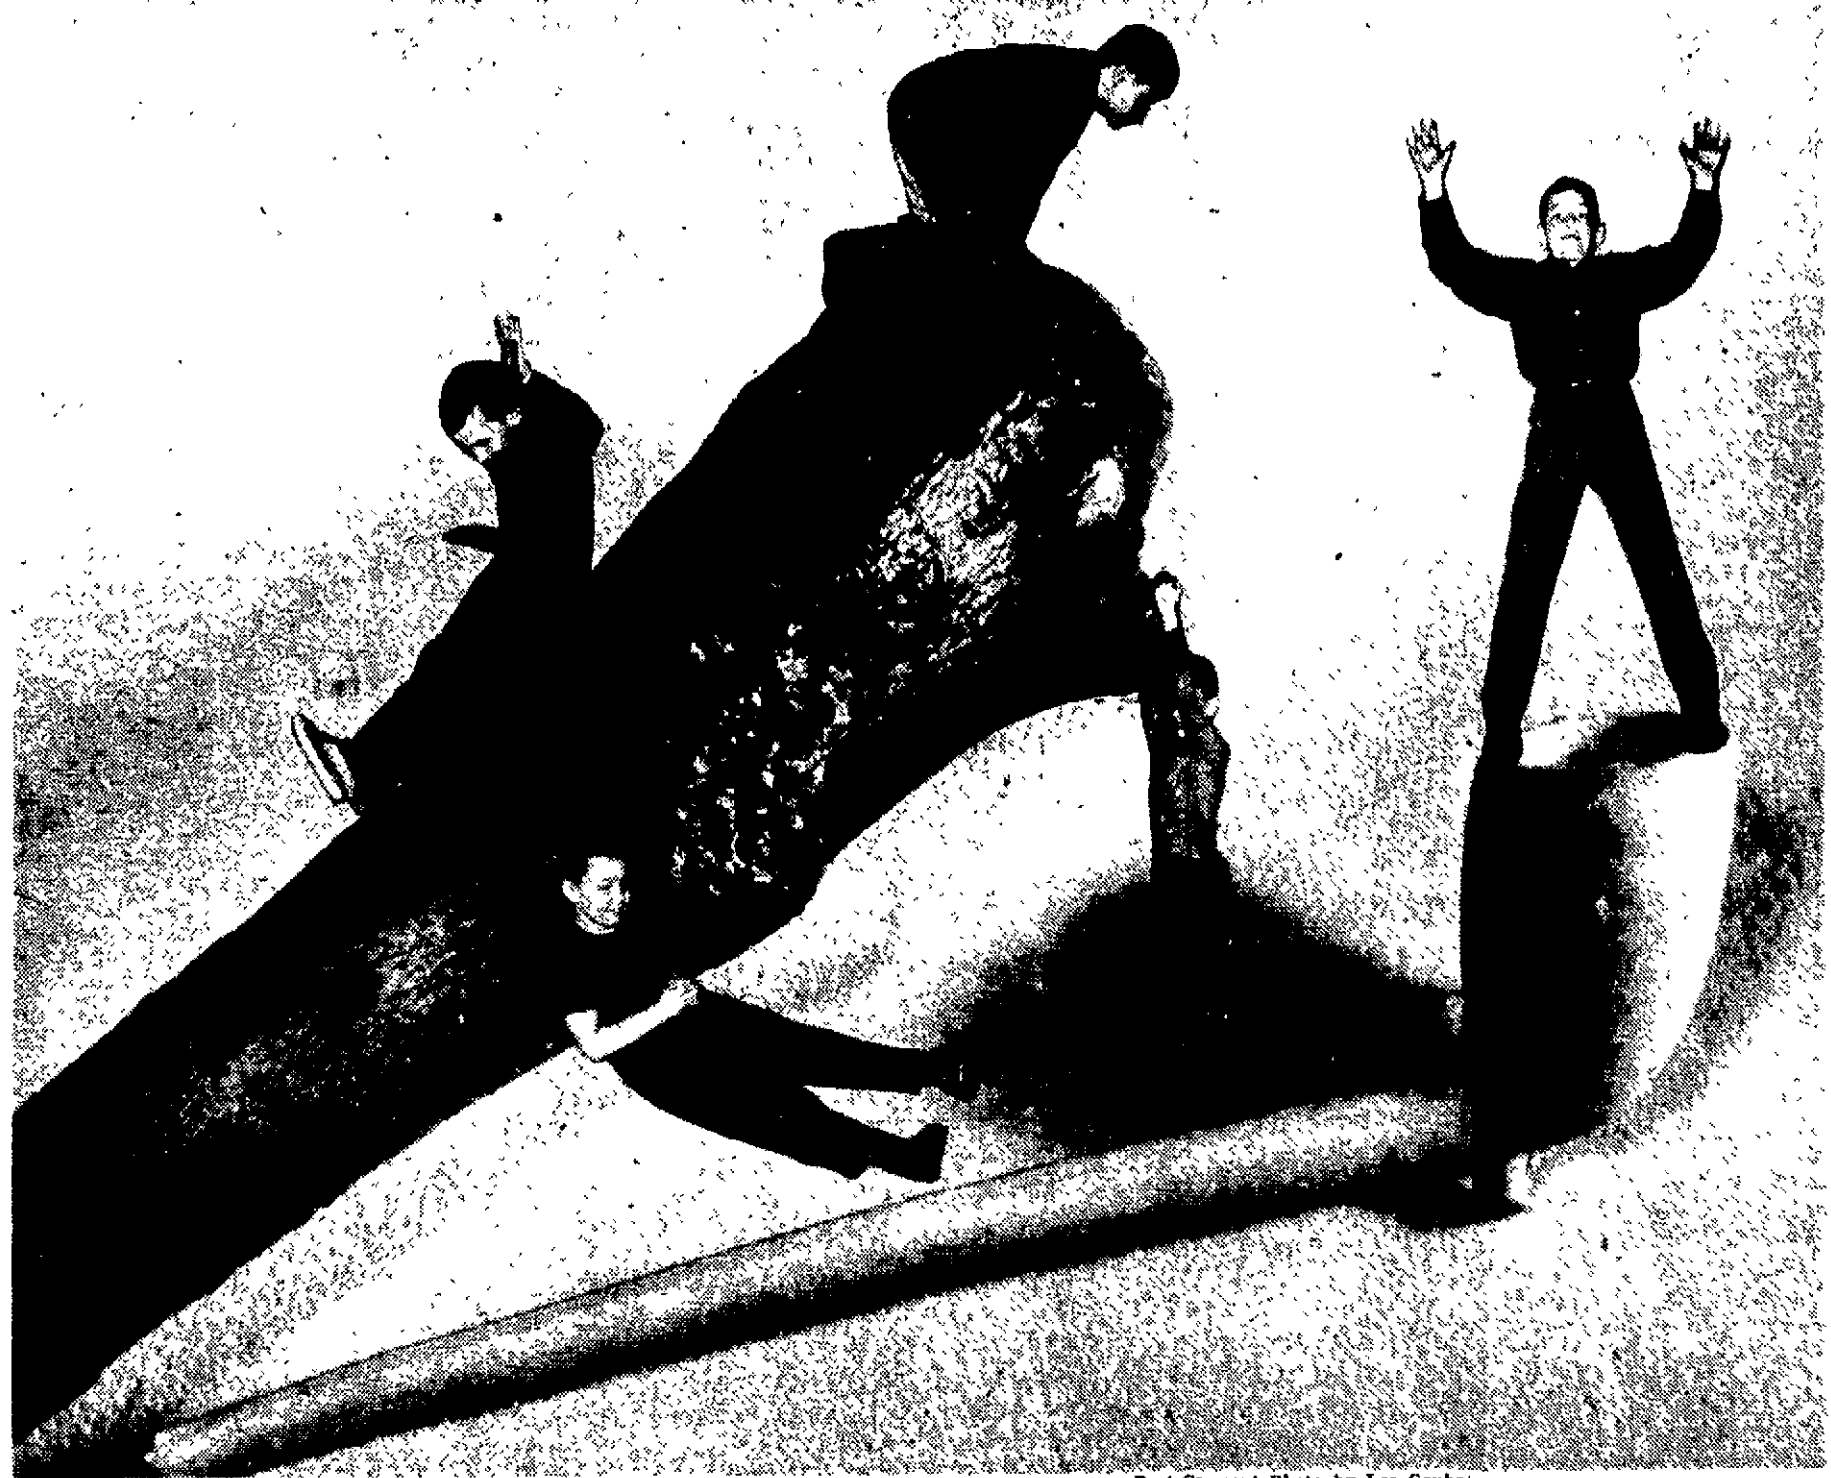

Miss Griffith came to Neenah in 1946 from Sheboygan North High school. She took her undergraduate work at Ripon college, where she lived, and received her masters degree from the University of Wisconsin. She has attended summer sessions at Northwestern and other universities.

"I am very tough when the girls do things they know are wrong, but we talk it over, and before they leave my office we are friends again. I tell them if they will tell me the truth nothing will shock me, but I cannot forgive lying and most of my girls know it."

Council Sets Awarding of School Bids

March 23 Special Meeting Scheduled For Junior High

Neenah — Action on the school board's request for the awarding of contracts for the new junior high school was set for a special meeting on Wednesday, March 23.

The council Wednesday night received a request from the school board that the construction contracts be awarded to the low bidders.

These bidders are Precourt Construction company, Oshkosh, general construction, agency fund.

$557,800; A. H. Angermeyer company, Neenah, plumbing, $72,775; Rohde Brothers, Plymouth, heating and ventilating, $171,809; and Mullen Electric company, Appleton, electrical work, $86,370.

Work By City

The school board also asked the council to have the city take care of the inside sidewalk construction and the grading west of the contract limit, cost of which was estimated at about $3,400.

City Atty. Charles Schaller advised the council that an ordinance would have to be passed for the city to take care of these projects. This could be ready by the March 23 special meeting.

The school board letter said the board was confident it could stay within the $1,063,000 estimate for the complete school submitted in an earlier letter. This figure included the site development, equipment, construction cost, architect's fees and contingency fund.

Although It Has No Church, St. Gabriel's Catholic parish in Neenah is operating. Among the first baptisms at the rectory at 151 Andrew avenue was that of Michael David Hildebrand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hildebrand, route 2, Neenah. The sponsors are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Collier with the Rev. Lawrence Stingle at the right.

Addition of Subdivision Foreshadows Bond Issue

Menasha — Changes in the official city map to include the new Grove subdivision were approved Tuesday by the city council. The plan is in Madison for approval by the state planning department.

Ald. Gordon Schanke urged the council to plan early installation of sewer and water service in the area. Schanke pointed out that the city is faced with a bond issue to finance the project and others. "We must have our plans ready so we can go ahead with it."

(Schanke was referring to large capital outlays facing the city in the next few years. If on one bond issue, the total might run as high as $1,500,000.

(Capital outlays proposed for the city are the Ninth street storm sewer project whose cost estimated in 1958 was $890,000; extension of streets and utilities into the Grove subdivision about $100,000 so far as can be estimated at present; $118,000 for development of the city's new Calder athletic field; and construction of a secondary sewage treatment plant by December 1961, for which Menasha will pay half, possibly as high as $400,000 to $450,000.)

(The city's bonded debt now is $1,790,000 — $225,000 for swimming pool, $390,000 for sewage disposal plant additions of 1957, $590,000 for Clovis-Grove school and $555,000 for Second ward school.)

Board Takes No Action on Civil Defense

Oshkosh — Winnebago county supervisors Tuesday took no action on organizing a county civil defense committee, under a new state law.

The board was urged to establish such a committee by George F. Oaks, county civil defense coordinator.

The new state law requires each county to have such a committee and to file a working plan for civil defense with the adjutant general.

Oaks emphasized the importance of cooperation with nearby counties in formulating plans to handle the estimated 212,000 persons who would be received in the area from emergency evacuations of metropolitan centers.

Rural areas already have made plans to safeguard children, and traffic patterns should be worked out with the highway commission and sheriff's department, Oaks added.

"We call our program of survival civil defense," said Oaks, who quoted anticipated last year statistics. In the mine where a caseworker first three hours of a nuclear spends most of her time and war bombardment in this will help in better time bud-country, 60 million Americans eting for other case phases, would be killed or fatally in. The other study is observing jured unless preventive steps each new case received in the are taken now. "The import- mine where effort is concen- nesses in our civil defense trated. The next board meeting will be May 10.

Snow Again Foils Council; Speaker Blizzard-Trapped

Neenah — For the second time in 38 years the speaker was prevented from attending a meeting of the Twin City Industrial safety council Wednesday night.

Because of the blizzard in the southern part of the state, Irving M. Footlik, president of Irving M. Footlik and Associates, Skokie, Ill., was unable to appear.

Marathon division supplied two films on material handling, which was the topic on which Mr. Footlik was going to speak. About 150 members of the council attended the meeting. Mr. Footlik will be invited to give his talk at an early meeting of the council in the fall.

The next meeting will be "Bosses' Night" April 19 at which the main speaker will be Dr. Arthur Secord of Brooklyn college. New York. His topic will be "How to Sell the Safety You Know."

Two Apostolate Directors Named

Menasha — Edward Krautkramer and Mrs. Ward Sullivan were named Tuesday to the board of directors of the Neenah-Menasha Apostolate, Catholic charity organization.

Pres. Wilbur Laux appointed Mrs. George Thome and Mrs. Stanley Zelinski to the membership committee.

Representatives of the new St. Gabriel parish were introduced. They are Michael Flaherty, Donald Gilling, William Harless, Mrs. Sullivan and Mrs. Alan Adrian.

The Rev. Ralph Hermesen, Apostolate director, reported conducted on casework. One, Oaks, who quoted anticipated last year statistics. In the mine where a caseworker first three hours of a nuclear spends most of her time and war bombardment in this will help in better time bud-country, 60 million Americans eting for other case phases, would be killed or fatally in. Alderman Wants Less Reading to Council

Committee to Study Ways to Reduce Lengthy Communications, Repetition

Appleton Ald. Malmstrom, after listening to a lengthy reading of resolutions for street work assessments Wednesday night, declared there must be some way of mitigating the amount of repetition and reading to the council is subjected.

Maybe there is, indicated Mayor Mitchell and named Ald. Priebe, City Atty. Jury and Public Works Director

Duszyński to a committee to figure out how.

The council approved drafting the bonding ordinance for $825,000 in general obligation bonds for the new Edison school.

Aldermen approved $2,925 for preliminary work on the new lighted baseball diamond in Telulah park, including $2,000 for removing lighting equipment from the Interlake diamond where the city's southside swimming pool is to be built. The board of public works cut $3,000 from the recreation department's request, dropping bleachers and a concrete block storage and concession building. Location of the field is not definite, because board members feel the park road should be moved to provide space for two diamonds.

Street Work Bids
The council approved board of public works bid awards to Brennan - Rolland, Cato, for sewer trenching and pipe laying; Courtney and Plummer, Neenah, for asphalt surfacing and stone chips; Landwehr, Inc., route 2, Appleton, for crushed stone; Badger Highways Company, Inc., Menasha, for crushed stone and stone chips; Concrete Pipe Corporation, Appleton, for plain and reinforced concrete sewer pipe; John Fischer and Sons, Appleton, for sidewalks; and Kuehn and Sommers, Shiocton, for curb and gutter.

Aldermen also approved purchasing three V-8 Ramblers and a new servi-car cycle for the police department.

Septic Tank
Aldermen approved the recommendation of the street and sanitation committee that the corps of engineers be allowed to install a septic tank for its lock master's residence at the first lock. Construction of the College avenue bridge and demolition of the John street bridge removed sewage lines from the island residence.

No Investigation
The council approved the same committee's recommendation decision that it would take no action on Ald. Tucker's demand that it investigate Teamster Business Agent Robert Schlieve's charge that street and sanitation department workers were discriminated against. Schlieve made the charge in a negotiating session with the committee, later amplified it to charging that all city workers had been "kicked around long enough."

Plans and Work
The engineering department was ordered to prepare plans for sanitary sewers on N. Eugene street between Marquette and Pershing streets. W. Marquette between Eugene and Linwood, N. Linwood between Marquette and Glendale and W. Lindbergh extended from Westview park lift station to Eugene street; storm sewers on N. Summit between Taylor and Roberts, W. Roberts from Summit west to the low point, E. Woodland between Willow and Westwood and Westwood court; and pavement on N. Oneida between Glendale and Linbergh, N. Owaissa between Wisconsin and Pacific, N. Rankin between Wisconsin and the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks, S. Telulah between John and Newberry, S. Meadows drive and Esterbrook court.

Water mains for W. Glendale between Mason and Elmer and N. Ballard road from Wisconsin north for about 900 feet were approved.

Aldermen authorized buying a 1,500 - gallon steel flusher for $4,119 and a truck chassis for it for $4,331, and a dump truck for $3,920.

Colburn Cherney to Head Kuehn Campaign
Green Bay — Colburn Cherney, a vice chairman of the state Republican executive committee, announced today he is resigning from the committee to head a state organization backing Philip Kuehn for governor.

Kuehn is opposed by Jack Olson, Wisconsin Deils, for the party endorsement.

While Cherney declined to comment, his plans to head a statewide campaign committee for the fall election apparently means he will not seek a place on the state ticket himself. Cherney has been mentioned as a candidate for attorney general or lieutenant governor.

Cherney has been a member of the state executive committee for five years. He will continue as Brown county GOP chairman.

SPECIAL THANKS
To the many wonderful people who in any way helped to make Ellen's heart surgery a success, our heartfelt thanks go to all of you. We especially wish to thank the blood donors and the many more that offered their blood, the Red Cross, hospitals and clinics, radio stations, the area newspapers, our pastor, friends and neighbors who helped, and for the prayers of many people of many faiths, we are truly grateful.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvied M. Rambo

Prosperity, Not Boom, Clues Say

BY SILVIA PORTER

The eagerly-awaited surveys on business spending plans are now out. Taken in late January-February — after the stock market break was well under way — they indicate that all major industries intend to hike their spending for new factories and equipment this year by more than 14 per cent to a record-smashing $37 billion.

Here are some of the key clues the nation's top economists are watching:

1. Business plans for spending on new plants.

our entire economy, it won't be climbing at a powerful enough rate to send us into a new spiral.

2. Auto sales in the spring. Despite dreadful weather in much of the nation, auto sales are running 11 to 12 per cent ahead of last year and the spring upturn is still to come. It's too soon to say that sales of domestically-produced autos won't hit the 6,500,000 mark this year.
3. Housing starts. Nevertheless, the evidence to date is that the auto industry will help keep the economy in a solid advance, but that it won't spark a sharp upswing.
4. The stock market. Neutral to Depressing. The break in stock prices unquestionably has chilled sentiment. Selling of stocks has reflected the disappearance of an inflationary psychology, shifts in funds from stocks to bonds, the downward revision of forecasts about business prospects.
5. Bank loans. There's no evidence so far that the crack in stock prices has seriously damaged psychology or business and hope. But as of now, this factor ranks as neutral to depressing.
6. Federal reserve monetary policy. The powerful men who manage our federal reserve system mold credit policy in accordance with their judgment of the economy's condition and needs. Right now, their policy actions indicate their appraisal is: Our economy is in a balance at a high level, but not a boom.
7. Borrowing from banks to finance inventories, expansions, other activities always is a clue to the economy's buoyancy. Demands for loans to date in 1960 have not been as heavy as expected.
8. The housing picture could be brighter than originally projected, but from this industry, no boom stimulant is looked for.

They dropped 10 wallets, each containing $5 and an identification card, on mid-town streets and then watched close by.

Seven of the 10 persons who picked up the wallets promptly called the telephone listed on the card. They found themselves talking to a theater manager who told them they could keep the money and pick up passes to the film.

The two men and a woman who found the other three wallets haven't been heard from.
